

Learning Objectives Given what Earth Science and Life Science say, the student is expected to take notes on how birth, spread of population, geographic area, habitat size, and the relationship of birth rate, death rate, and growth rate.

Types of Population Dynamics		Process	Impact
Exponential Growth		An organism is introduced into a homogeneous, resource-rich environment with few predators.
Logistic Growth	Phase 1	An organism is introduced into a homogeneous, resource-rich environment with few predators.
	Phase 2	Resource becomes limited.
	Phase 3	The carrying capacity of the environment is reached.

Lesson Summary

Describing Populations

Ecological Systems Most ecologists study populations. Ecologists study a particular community of organisms (range, growth rate, density, interactions, and life span).

Change after Change They plan a population study using the geographic range of organisms, using appropriate scales. For example, the population of bacteria in a single colony is quite different from the population of all bacteria worldwide, a population of birds may be in one large area, the population may grow in another area later.

Growth Rate The number of organisms in a population can change over time, in a short period time. Population numbers can grow rapidly when resources are rich, predators are scarce, and there are no diseases or other problems.
