

A young boy with light brown hair and black-rimmed glasses stands in front of a green chalkboard. He is wearing a blue V-neck sweater over a white shirt. His arms are crossed, and he has a serious expression, looking slightly upwards. The chalkboard behind him is filled with the phrase "I will try harder in class" written in white chalk, repeated many times in a slightly cursive, handwritten style. The text is arranged in horizontal rows, filling the entire background of the image.

Black,2018-08-07 Suspension and expulsion rates have doubled over the past three decades as zero tolerance policies have become the normal response to a host of minor infractions that extend well beyond just drugs and weapons Students from all demographic groups have suffered but minority and special needs students have suffered the most Derek Black weaves stories about individual students lessons from social science and the outcomes of courts cases to unearth an irrational system of punishment While schools and legislatures have proven unable and unwilling to amend their failing policies Ending Zero Tolerance argues for constitutional protections to check abuses in school discipline and lays out theories by which courts should re engage to enforce students rights and support broader reforms The Grammar of School Discipline Hannah Carson Baggett,Carey E. Andrzejewski,2021-05-18 The Grammar of School Discipline examines how seemingly discrete school discipline policies and practices constitute a particular grammar Removal Resistance and Reform Weaving numeric data with portraits of students and school practitioners the authors detail a nuanced landscape of school discipline in Alabama and its anti Black foundations The removal of Black students can be traced to the antebellum construction of Blackness as criminal deviant and deserving of punishment A focus on resistance centers the agency that students and practitioners exercise despite anti Black removal An exploration of specific reform efforts emphasizes that even the most well intentioned and well organized reforms are limited when the removal of students remains an option for practitioners The authors end with an appeal to educational stakeholders to repair the harms that these anti Black policies and practices inflict on students and communities and thus move towards repairing the damage that white supremacy inflicts on everyone's humanity Discipline Over Punishment Trevor W. The Concept of School Discipline Anna Catherine Hogg, 1981-01

Spare the Rod Campbell F. Scribner, Bryan R. Warnick, 2021-05-11 Spare the Rod traces the history of discipline in schools and its ever increasing integration with prison and policing ultimately arguing for an approach to discipline that aligns with the moral community that schools could and should be In Spare the Rod historian Campbell F Scribner and philosopher Bryan R Warnick investigate the history and philosophy of America s punishment and discipline practices in schools To delve into this controversial subject they first ask questions of meaning How have concepts of discipline and punishment in schools changed over time What purposes are they supposed to serve And what can they tell us about our assumptions about education They then explore the justifications Are public school educators ever justified in punishing or disciplining students Are discipline and punishment necessary for students moral education or do they fundamentally have no place in education at all If some form of punishment is justified in schools what ethical guidelines should be followed The authors argue that as schools have grown increasingly bureaucratic over the last century formalizing disciplinary systems and shifting from physical punishments to forms of spatial or structural punishment such as in school suspension school discipline has not only come to resemble the operation of prisons or policing but has grown increasingly integrated with those institutions These changes and structures are responsible for the school to prison pipeline They show that these shifts disregard the unique status of schools as spaces of moral growth and community oversight and are incompatible with the developmental environment of education What we need they argue is an approach to discipline and punishment that fits with the sort of moral community that schools could and should be
