An Economic Assessment of Banana Genetic Improvement and Innovation in the Lake Victoria Region of Uganda and Tanzania Melinda Smale, W. Tushemereirwe, 2007 This report assesses the impact on smallholder farmers of technology options developed by Uganda's National Agricultural Research Organization NARO to improve the productivity of the East African highland banana a major crop in Uganda and Tanzania The contributors survey an array of options either currently practiced or under development including improved soil fertility management practices conventional banana improvement and transgenic banana cultivars Their survey produces a number of findings with important implications for banana production a recently developed banana hybrid adopted in Tanzania reduced the vulnerability of Tanzanian households to yield losses from pests and disease a strong network of social ties among farmers facilitates the spread of best soil fertility management practices through farmer to farmer exchange and transgenic bananas currently being developed could have pro poor impact Drawing on simulations of the economic benefits of these and other technology options the contributors conclude that the current strategy endorsed by NARO of combining conventional and transgenic approaches to mitigate the biotic pressures that cause major economic losses is essential for sustaining banana production systems The report serves as a valuable baseline for researchers and others interested in measuring the effectiveness of crop improvement programs

The Refinement of Econometric Estimation and Test Procedures Garry D. A. Phillips, Elias Tzavalis, 2007-02-01 The small sample properties of estimators and tests are frequently too complex to be useful or are unknown Much econometric theory is therefore developed for very large or asymptotic samples where it is assumed that the behaviour of estimators and tests will adequately represent their properties in small samples Refined asymptotic methods adopt an intermediate position by providing improved approximations to small sample behaviour using asymptotic expansions Dedicated to the memory of Michael Magdalinos whose work is a major contribution to this area this book contains chapters directly concerned with refined asymptotic methods In addition there are chapters focusing on new asymptotic results the exploration through simulation of the small sample behaviour of estimators and tests in panel data models and improvements in methodology With contributions from leading econometricians this collection will be essential reading for researchers and graduate students concerned with the use of asymptotic methods in econometric analysis
