Teaching Language and Literacy James F. Christie, Billie Enz, Carol Vukelich, 2003 The unique focus of this text integrates constructivist learning diversity and instruction based assessment and helps translate principles into practice The central underlying thesis of Teaching Language and Literacy is that children are at the center of all good language and literacy teaching The text with broad coverage of preschool through the elementary grades advocates an appreciation of student diversity and an implementation of assessment strategies relating to specific learning teaching events The text describes how children construct their own knowledge about oral and written language by engaging in integrated meaningful and functional activities with other people in a variety of contexts It then goes one step further describing how teachers can design authentic classroom reasons for using oral and written language In keeping with the text's theme illustrations of how teachers can work effectively with diverse learners appear throughout the text In addition instructionally linked assessment is another important topic central to the text

Second Language Anxiety Richard L. Sparks, 2025-07-11 This book traces and summarizes theoretical insights and empirical findings on the topic of whether or not anxiety for language learning could be a causal variable for individual differences in language learning The author brings together three decades of research to show that first language L1 skills and second language L2 aptitude are confounding variables in studies of language anxiety and that learners' levels of anxiety for L2 learning are strongly related to their levels of language achievement These findings have suggested that language anxiety instruments reflect students' accurate self-perceptions of their language skills and their levels of L1 achievement and L2 aptitude The research presented in this book holds the potential to change the ways in which L2 educators and researchers think about language anxiety how language anxiety is assessed how investigations into language anxiety are conducted and how L2 teachers respond to anxiety in the classroom
