Text Complexity and Reading Comprehension Tests Erik Castello, 2008 Based on the analysis of a specially compiled corpus of internationally recognized English as a foreign language EFL reading tests at different levels of proficiency this volume explores the relation between the complexity of written texts and the difficulty of reading comprehension tests It brings together linguistic investigations into the text inherent complexity of the tests and a study of the data derived from their administration to groups of Italian university students The study of text complexity draws on corpus linguistics text linguistics and systemic functional linguistics Both quantitative and qualitative analyses are carried out on the language used in the reading texts and in the related tasks that make up the corpus of tests The assessment of test difficulty on the other hand is informed by research on language testing and in particular by findings and methodologies of Classical Test Theory and Item Response Theory Relevant aspects of these theories are used to analyze and interpret both the data obtained from the administration of the tests and the data collected by means of feedback questionnaires completed by test takers The application of such diverse methodologies and the subsequent comparison of the results of the analyses has brought out interesting correlations between text inherent complexity perceived test difficulty and actual test difficulty

Examining Writing Stuart D. Shaw, Cyril J. Weir, 2007-07-05 Test developers need to provide a clear explication of the language ability constructs that underpin the tests they offer in the public domain such an explication is essential for supporting claims about the validity or usefulness of test scores This volume describes the theory and practice of Cambridge ESOL's approach to assessing second language writing ability. A comprehensive test validation framework is used to examine the tasks in Cambridge ESOL writing tests from a number of different validity perspectives that reflect the socio-cognitive nature of any assessment event. The authors show how an understanding and analysis of the framework and its components can assist test developers to operationalise their tests more effectively, especially in relation to the key criteria that differentiate one proficiency level from another. The book provides an up-to-date review of relevant literature on assessing writing, an accessible and systematic description of the different proficiency levels in second language writing, a comprehensive and coherent basis for validating tests of writing. This volume is a rich source of information on all aspects of examining writing ability. As such, it will be of considerable interest to examination boards who wish to validate their own writing tests in a systematic and coherent manner, as well as to academic researchers and students in the field of language assessment more generally.
