Grade 6 Reading Comprehension Worksheet

The Signal-Man

By Charles Dickens

Read the story. Then answer the questions.

"Halloa! Below there!" When he heard a voice thus calling to him, he was standing at the door of his box, with a flag in his hand, furled round its short pole. He turned himself about, and looked down the Line. There was something remarkable in his manner of doing so. From looking down the Line, again, and, raising his eyes, saw my figure high above him. "Is there any path by which I can come down and speak to you?" He looked up at me just then there came a vague vibration in the earth and air. I looked down again, and saw him refurling the flag he had shown while the train went by. I repeated my inquiry during which he seemed to regard me with fixed attention, he motioned with his rolled-up flag towards a point on my level, some two hundred yards distant. I called down to him, "All right!" and made for that point. I saw that he was standing between the rails, in an attitude as if he were waiting for me to appear. I resumed my downward way, and stepping out upon the level of the railroad. He directed a most curious look towards the red light near the tunnel's mouth. "You look at me," I said, forcing a smile, "as if you had a dread of me." "I was doubtful," he returned. He replied to my remarks with readiness, and in well-chosen words. He had enough responsibility to bear; but exactness and watchfulness were what was required of him, and of actual work manual labour he had next to none. To change that signal, to trim those lights, and to turn this iron handle now and then, was all he had to do under that head. Regarding those many long and lonely hours of which I seemed to make so much, he could only say that the routine of his life had shaped itself into that form, and he had grown used to it. He took me into his box, where there was a fire, a desk for an official book in which he had to make certain entries, a telegraphic instrument with its dial, face, and needles, and the little bell. He had made his bed, and he lay upon it. He was several times interrupted by the little bell, and had to read off messages, and send replies and display a flag as a train passed, and make some verbal communication to the driver. In the discharge of his duties, I observed him to be remarkably exact and vigilant.

Answer each question.

1. How did he give the description of the signal-man?
2. Where did the signal-man meet him?
3. How many responsibilities he had to bear?
4. What he observed into the box of the signal-man?
5. How many times did he interrupt and why?
