Economic Policy, Crisis and Innovation Maria Cristina Marcuzzo, Antonella Palumbo, Paola Villa, 2019-11-21 This book is a Festschrift to Annamaria Simonazzi and embraces the themes that she has contributed to over the years through her insightful and inspiring works It brings together contributions from a number of distinguished European economists which

pay tribute to her by engaging in a dialogue with her research simultaneously reflecting on the process of growing economic disintegration in the European Union its causes and its possible remedies The book shows the deep interrelations between macroeconomic issues and the social sphere and points to the need to rethink the very foundations of European economic policies as an effective antidote to growing imbalances and disintegration In particular the effects of austerity are assessed alongside the dimensions of inequality gender discrimination poverty and unemployment broadening the perspective also beyond the Eurozone The authors envision a progressive society in which investments in research and intelligent industrial policies govern the processes of technological change and drive the economy towards a more efficient and more equal model of development characterized by high productivity and high wages While some chapters deal directly with policy issues policy suggestions and proposals are scattered throughout the whole book This volume will appeal to academics economists and policy makers interested in understanding the policy response of European institutions to the challenges posed by both the Great Recession and subsequent developments in the European economies The book is written in an engaging and accessible way and the themes are broad enough to generate interest from the international public Arguing About Tastes David Kreps, 2023-11-28

Mainstream economics considers individual preferences to be fixed and unchanging Although psychologists and other social scientists explore how tastes are formed influenced and evolve it is not considered proper in orthodox economics to do so Arguing About Tastes makes the case that economists should abandon the principle that preferences are fixed and instead incorporate into their work how context and experience shape individual tastes David M Kreps argues that the discipline must account for dynamic personal tastes when it comes to understanding social exchange emphasizing human resource management and on the job behavior He develops formal models that illustrate the power of intrinsic motivation and show why applying extrinsic incentives can be counterproductive Kreps weighs the advantages and disadvantages of the principle de gustibus non est disputandum there is no arguing about tastes He calls for a new era of economics in which preferences are taken into account and not for granted Arguing About Tastes concludes with responses by the distinguished economists Alessandra Casella and Joseph E Stiglitz and a final reply by Kreps Psychology of Group and Collective Intelligence Yoshiko Arima, 2022-01-17
