

Persuasive Essay: Teens and Alcohol Abuse

Teens like to drink so they can be in a different world and forget all their problems in life. Their peers also pressure them to party and have fun and drink. Studies show that teen drinking and driving and alcohol abuse is on the rise. My plan is to raise awareness of the issue of teen drinking and how communication between parents and teens can reduce the incidence of adolescent alcohol abuse and drunk driving related deaths. Parental awareness and involvement is essential to keeping teens safe. Parents need to teach their children how to keep safe in situations involving alcohol. Share with them the risks and give them some facts that inform them to take responsible actions instead of actions that could harm themselves or other people.

Parents need to be there for their teens, especially if you see that they need help. Underage drinking can have serious consequences. You can protect your children from the risks associated with drinking by maintaining open communication and expressing a clear, consistent message about alcohol. Building a close relationship with your kids will make it easier for them to come to you for help in making decisions that impact their health and well-being.

Parents need to keep tabs on where their child goes and offer them their assistance such as driving them home from a party if they drank too much to drive themselves home. Studies show adolescents whose parents closely monitor their activities are less likely to use alcohol or to be in risky situations involving alcohol. If they were scared of the situation like people getting so drunk that they are being wild and dangerous to the people around them at a party.

Also, parents should set good examples for their kids so they learn what to do in that situation and they need help. If one parent is a heavy drinker, the child's chances of becoming a heavy drinker increase by two or three times more than if the parents are not heavy drinker. Teens need to take responsibility for their own actions.
