Persuasive Speech

Sara Speaker

Specific subject: Special Olympics

Specific purpose: To persuade the audience to volunteer for the Special Olympics

Introduction (attention)

I. Attention getter: In Seattle, nine young athletes began racing in the 100-yard dash as the gun went off. All except one little boy who stumbled on the asphalt, tumbled over a couple of times, and began to cry. When the other eight runners heard the boy cry, every single one of them turned around and ran to his side. One girl with Down syndrome kissed him and said, "This will make it better." Then all nine linked arms and walked to the finish line—together. These athletes were competing in the Special Olympics. Founded in 1968, Special Olympics encouraged the world to understand that people with disabilities can be respected, valued, contributing members of society (McCoy, 2000).

II. Listener relevance: One of those children that crossed the finish line could have fallen into your arms, or some day one of them could be your own child.

III. Thesis statement: After working as a volunteer for Special Olympics and doing additional research for this speech, I want to encourage you to donate your time as a Special Olympics volunteer.

IV. Preview of main points: Today, we'll discuss the need for Special Olympics volunteers, how you can help by becoming a volunteer, the rewards of volunteering for Special Olympics, and next steps to take to get involved.

Body

I. First main point (need): As Special Olympics has grown over the years, so has the need for volunteers.

A. In her book, Hearts of Gold: A Celebration of Special Olympics and Its Heroes, Sheila Dinn (1996) mentions that more than 1.3 million athletes compete in Special Olympics around the world.

1. Participants must be at least eight years old and must be identified as having an intellectual or cognitive disability.

2. There are currently 200 Special Olympics programs in more than 150 countries (Miller, 2008).

B. The success of Special Olympics depends on its large corps of volunteers.

1. In an interview I conducted with Julie Buedding (personal communication, February 23, 2008), the Director of Development of the Special Olympics here in Wisconsin, she mentioned that there are 10,000 athletes and 3,500 volunteer coaches.
