Poultry Feed Recipe Women:

All We Knew Was to Farm Melissa Walker, 2002-07-22 Winner of the Willie Lee Rose Prize from the Southern Association for Women Historians In the years after World War I Southern farm women found their world changing A postwar plunge in farm prices stretched into a twenty year agricultural depression and New Deal programs eventually transformed the economy Many families left their land to make way for larger commercial farms New industries and the intervention of big government in once insular communities marked a turning point in the struggle of upcountry women forcing new choices and the redefinition of traditional ways of life Melissa Walker's All We Knew Was to Farm draws on interviews archives and family and government records to reconstruct the conflict between rural women and bewildering and unsettling change Some women adapted by becoming partners in farm operations adopting the roles of consumers and homemakers taking off farm jobs or leaving the land The material lives of rural upcountry women improved dramatically by midcentury yet in becoming middle class Walker concludes the women found their experiences both broadened and circumscribed
