In recent decades we have witnessed an increasing use of projects and similar temporary modes of organising in the public sector of nations in Europe and around the world While for some this is a welcome development which unlocks entrepreneurial zeal and renders public services more flexible and accountable others argue that this seeks to depoliticise policy initiatives rendering them increasingly technocratic and that the project organisations formed in this process offer fragmented and unsustainable short term solutions to long term problems This volume sets out to address public sector

projectification by drawing together research from a range of academic fields to develop a critical and theoretically informed understanding of the causes nature and consequences of the projectification of the public sector This book includes 13 chapters and is organised into three parts The first part centres on the politics of projectification specifically the role of projects in de politicisation often accomplished by rendering the political technical The chapters in the second part all relate to the reframing of the relationship between the centre and periphery or between policy making and implementation and the role of temporality in reshaping this relation The third and final part brings a focus upon the tools techniques and agents through which public sector projectification is assembled constructed and performed
