Schmidt, 2015-12-14 The financialization globalization and industrialization of our food systems make it increasingly difficult to access quality fresh food In fact the industrialized global food system is creating products that are less food like engendering growing questions about the health and safety of our food supply In addition the bio engineering of food commodities is another factor influencing the growth of industrial farming for an increasingly homogenized globalized market This book describes the financialization process in commodity futures markets which transformed commodities into an asset class Incorporated into the portfolio decisions of investors commodity prices now behave like all asset prices becoming more volatile and subject to periodic bubbles As commodity prices were driven higher in the 2000s farmland became more valuable setting off a global land grab by investors nations and corporations More recently under the financialization food regime slow growth and low returns encouraged merger activity driven by private equity firms with food industry corporations as prime targets leading to increased industry concentration With government policy focused on supporting corporate interests there has been a global reaction to the current food system The food sovereignty movement is taking on the interests behind the global land grab and the regional food movement in cities across the U S is hitting corporations at the bottom line Food corporations are listening Is the food movement winning This book is of interest to those who study political economy financialization and agriculture and related studies as well as food systems and commodity future markets

Fixing the Food System Steve Clapp, 2016-11-14 America's broken food system has provoked an outcry from consumer advocates seeking to align food policies with public health objectives This book examines both sides of the conflict for solutions Many believe that America's food system is in dire need of reform with concerns ranging from the obesity epidemic to exploitative labor practices and negative environmental impact This eye opening book answers provocative questions about what changes are needed who is advocating the changes what parties are opposing these changes and why and what a new food system would look like Organized into three sections the work identifies the problems with the current system reviews the changing landscape of food policy and suggests workable solutions for progress Washington insider Steve Clapp takes a comprehensive look at the struggle over the future of food He examines the vision for a reformed national food policy that includes calculating the true cost of food providing universal access to healthful food adopting farm policies supporting public health and environmental objectives improving food safety paying fair wages to food employees treating food animals with compassion and reducing the food system's carbon footprint The book explores the ways in which these issues can be resolved drawing upon lessons learned from the early food advocates of the 1960s and 1970s

Making Slow Food Fast in California Cuisine Victor W. Geraci, 2017-03-02 This book follows the development of industrial agriculture in California and its influence on both regional and national eating habits Early California politicians and entrepreneurs envisioned agriculture as a solution to the food needs of the expanding industrial nation The state's climate geography vast expanses of land water and immigrant workforce when coupled with university research and governmental assistance provided a model for agribusiness In a short time the San Francisco Bay Area became a hub for guaranteeing Americans access to a consistent quantity of quality foods To this end California agribusiness played a major role in national food policies and subsequently produced a bifurcated California Cuisine that sustained both Slow and Fast Food proponents Problems arose as mid twentieth century social activists battled the unresponsiveness of government
