Financing the American Dream Lendol Calder, 2009-07-01 Once there was a golden age of American thrift when citizens lived sensibly within their means and worked hard to stay out of debt The growing availability of credit in this century however has brought those days to an end undermining traditional moral virtues such as prudence diligence and the delay of gratification while encouraging reckless consumerism Or so we commonly believe In this engaging and thought provoking book Lendol Calder shows that this conception of the past is in fact a myth Calder presents the first book length social and cultural history of the rise of consumer credit in America He focuses on the years between 1890 and 1940 when the legal institutional and moral bases of today s consumer credit were established and in an epilogue takes the story up to the present He draws on a wide variety of sources including personal diaries and letters government and business records newspapers advertisements movies and the words of such figures as Benjamin Franklin Mark Twain and P T Barnum to show that debt has always been with us He vigorously challenges the idea that consumer credit has eroded traditional values Instead he argues monthly payments have imposed strict externally reinforced disciplines on consumers making the culture of consumption less a playground for hedonists than an extension of what Max Weber called the iron cage of disciplined rationality and hard work Throughout Calder keeps in clear view the human face of credit relations He re creates the Dickensian world of nineteenth century pawnbrokers takes us into the dingy backstairs offices of loan sharks into small town shops and New York department stores and explains who resorted to which types of credit and why He also traces the evolving moral status of consumer credit showing how it changed from a widespread but morally dubious practice into an almost universal and generally accepted practice by World War II Combining clear rigorous arguments with a colorful narrative style Financing the American Dream will attract a wide range of academic and general readers and change how we understand one of the most important and overlooked aspects of American social and economic life

Staten, 2012-12-06 As both the twenty first century and the new millennium opened and the old eras passed into history individuals and organizations throughout the world advanced their listings of the most significant people and events in their respective specialties Possibly more important the turn of the clock and calendar also offered these same observers a good reason to glance into the crystal ball Presumably the past is of greatest interest to most people when it permits better understanding of the present and maybe even limited insight into the outlook In keeping with the reflective mood of the time the staff and friends of the Credit Research Center CRC at Georgetown University's McDonough School of Business noted that the beginning of the new millennium also marked the beginning of the second quarter century of the Center's existence The Center began at the Krannert Graduate School of Management at Purdue University in 1974 and moved to the McDonough School of Business at Georgetown University in 1997 The silver anniversary of its founding offered the occasion for creating more than another listing of significant past accomplishments and milestones Rather it offered the opportunity and indeed a mandate for CRC as an academic research center to undertake a retrospective and future look into the status of research questions pertaining to consumer credit markets For this reason the Center organized a research conference which
