Author: Nekisa Mahzad

I have been a student at California State University Channel Islands (CI) for 5 semesters, and over the course of my stay I have grown and learned more than I thought possible. I came to this school from Moorpark Community College already knowing that I wanted to be an English teacher; I had taken numerous English courses and though I knew exactly what I was headed for-was I ever wrong. Going through the English program has taught me so much more than stuff about literature and language, it has taught me how to be me. I have learned here how to write and express myself, how to think for myself, and how to find the answers to the things that I don't know. Most importantly I have learned how important literature and language are.

When I started at CI, I thought I was going to spend the next 3 years reading classics, discussing them and then writing about them. That was what I did in community college English courses, so I didn't think it would be much different here. On the surface, to an outsider, I am sure that this is what it appears that C.I. English majors do. In most all my classes I did read, discuss, and write papers; however, I quickly found out that that there was so much more to it. One specific experience I had while at C.I. really shows how integrated this learning is. Instead of writing a paper for my final project in Perspectives of Multicultural Literature (ENGL 449), I decided with a friend to venture to an Indian reservation and compare it to a book we read by Sherman Alexie. We had a great time and we learned so much more that we ever could have done from writing a paper. The opportunity to do that showed me that there are so many ways that one can learn that are both fun and educational.

The English courses also taught me how powerful the written word and language can be. Words tell so much more than a story. Stories tell about life and the human condition, they bring up the past and people and cultures that are long gone. Literature teaches about the self and the world surrounding the self. From these classes I learned about the world, its people and its history; through literature I learned how we as humans are all related. By writing about what we learn and/or what we believe, we are learning how to express ourselves.

I know that my ability to write and express my ideas, thoughts and knowledge has grown stronger each semester. I have always struggled to put my thoughts on paper in a manner that is coherent and correct according to assignments. I can remember being told numerous times in community college to "organize your Essential Interviewing and Counseling Skills Tracy Prout, Melanie Wadkins, 2014-03-27 This is the only comprehensive text to focus on the development of practical interviewing and counseling skills for master's level mental health counseling students. It is structured around the goals established by the CACREP's 2009 document on standards for MHC programs and uniquely encompasses both theory and practice from the perspectives of a diverse array of theoretical schools and practice strategies. The benefits of integrating complementary therapy approaches according to the needs of the client and the importance of multicultural considerations in interviewing and counseling are consistent themes throughout. The book's hands-on guidance regarding interviewing and counseling skills along with its embrace of different therapeutic modalities will enable students to learn how to provide care to clients that is tailored to their specific needs. Each chapter includes a highlighted section that draws students' attention to topics related to diversity and strategies for working with clients from a variety of populations. Issues related to race, ethnicity, immigration, and country of origin are highlighted along with age, gender, sexual orientation, religion, language, and physical and cognitive abilities. The use of case examples from multiple theoretical orientations offers a realistic view of what actually occurs in a consulting room. The book also addresses working with clients who have serious emotional or psychological difficulties and covers evidenced-based practice, assessment, and diagnosis, and when and how to terminate treatment. An instructor's guide and PowerPoint slides are also included.

Key Features: Provides a balanced integrated theoretical and practical approach to interviewing and counseling with a focus on skills development. Teaches the fundamental skills of empathy, active listening, treatment planning, and developing a strong therapeutic alliance. Includes Spotlight on Culture sections with case studies to emphasize how diversity informs sensitive and effective psychotherapy. Provides exercises to help students discover their own blind spots in regard to diversity. Offers a realistic window into the profession through numerous case examples.

The End of Composition Studies David W Smit, 2007-03-29 Setting forth an innovative new model for what it means to be a writing teacher in the era of writing across the curriculum The End of Composition Studies urges a reconceptualization of graduate work in rhetoric and composition systematically critiques the limitations of current pedagogical practices at the postsecondary level and proposes a reorganization of all academic units. David W Smit calls into question two major assumptions of the field that writing is a universal ability and that college level writing is foundational to advanced learning. Instead Smit holds writing involves a wide range of knowledge and skill that cannot be learned solely in writing classes but must be acquired by immersion in various discourse communities in and out of academic settings The End of Composition Studies provides a compelling rhetoric and rationale for eliminating the field and reenvisioning the profession as truly interdisciplinary a change that is necessary in order to fulfill the needs and demands of students instructors administrators and our democratic society
