

OBJECTIVES OF RESEARCH

Research is defined as a systematised effort to gain new knowledge. It is referred to as the search for knowledge.

The main purpose of research is to find solutions to unsolved problems using scientific procedures and to understand various phenomenon scientifically.

The main objective of research is to find out a hidden, undiscovered truth.

The various objectives are –

1. Propose and test certain hypothesis that provide causal relationships between variables.
2. Discover and establish the existence of relationship, association and independence between two or more aspects of a situation or phenomenon.
3. Understand different phenomenon and develop new perceptions about it.
4. Study and describe accurately the characteristics of situations, problems, phenomenon, services, groups or individuals.
5. Explain the unexplored horizons of knowledge.
6. Test reported findings and conclusions on new data and novel conclusions on previously reported data.
7. Study the frequency of research that is connected with unspecified study.

deal with the referees comments Each chapter concludes with a checklist to ensure all the key elements have been addressed

The Scientific Method J. Scott Armstrong,Kesten C. Green,2022-06-30 A guide to identifying and practicing useful scientific research for researchers administrators policy makers lawyers and journalists

Playing with Density Anita Grams,2018-11-23 The revised Swiss Spatial Planning Law which came into effect in 2014 and the minimum strategy of inward development before outward development obligate municipalities to direct their spatial development to ward existing largely built up spaces and to coordinate building zone dimensioning across municipal boundaries For many small and medium sized municipalities in Switzerland this means changing thought patterns with regard to spatial planning practice A major element of inward development is the constructional densification of existing settlement areas However especially in small and medium sized municipalities densification is confronted with numerous problems such as insufficient acceptance of dense building typologies mobilisation obstacles for reserves secured under building law and the lack of thought patterns concerning inward development This is where the research in this volume sets in leading to the hypothesis that inward development in the main settlement areas of Switzerland is possible but that the existing formal instruments of spatial planning themselves are insufficient for this purpose An estimation of the reserves in the Swiss Plateau shows that there is a theoretical capacity for accommodating around 0 5 1 million additional inhabitants there is without having to adjust the formal instruments Around two thirds of all reserves are located in small and medium sized municipalities with fewer than 10 000 inhabitants which moreover make up 93% of all administrative units of the Swiss Plateau. In addition it is estimated that half of the floor area reserves lie on already built up though underused plots. In the main settlement area of Switzerland a systematic density eschewal is taking place in small and medium sized municipalities. In order to help inward development achieve a breakthrough in the main settlement area in Switzerland informal procedures are needed in these municipal categories that result in a revision of local planning. In doing so informal procedures should not negate the specific organisational form of small and medium sized municipalities namely the militia system of governance but should rather adapt to this principle. An inward development compass brings together the knowledge existing in the militia system of governance forming the informal prelude to the local planning revision of the third generation in small and medium sized municipalities. The inception of the revised spatial planning law and its stipulations on inward development and densification confronts the three large scale areas of Switzerland with different challenges. Yet driven by changes in the fields of demographics energy and finances the initial problems will manifest themselves most clearly in the Swiss Plateau. If the required transformation process is to succeed a more pronounced orientation of policy and spatial planning towards the initial problems in small and medium sized municipalities is necessary.
