Mental Floss: We live in a world of conspicuous consumption where the things we buy not only satisfy our needs but also communicate our values, identities and aspirations. In Cool, Steven Quartz and Anette Asp bring together groundbreaking findings in neuroscience, economics and evolutionary biology to show how our concepts of cool be it designer jeans, smartphones or craft beer help drive the global economy. Cool puts forth a provocative theory of consumerism based on our brain's innate status seeking and social calculator. The authors highlight the underlying processes that guide our often unconscious decision making. They also pull back the curtain on choice architects who design store interiors as well as coolhunters who scour Berlin and Tokyo for the latest trends. Quartz and Asp follow the evolution of cool consumption from the mid twentieth century through the emergence of the Internet in the 1990s, finally unpacking the social motivations behind today's hip, ethical consumption. Taking us from Norman Mailer to normcore, Cool is surprising at every turn and will forever change the way you think about money, status and your next purchase. Towards a Political Economy of Resource-dependent Regions Greg Halseth, Laura Ryser, 2017-08-18 This book advances our understanding of resource dependent regions in developed economies in the 21st Century. It explores how rural and small town places are working to find success in a new economy marked by demographic, economic, social, cultural, political and environmental change. How are we to understand the changes and transformations working through communities and economies? Where are the trajectories of change leading these resource dependent places and regions? Drawing upon examples from Canada, USA, UK, Australia, New Zealand and the Nordic countries, these and other questions are explored and addressed by constructing a critical political economy framework of resource hinterland transition. Towards a Political Economy of Resource Dependent Regions is a key resource for students and researchers in geography, rural and industrial sociology, economics, environmental studies, political science, regional studies and planning as well as policy makers, those in industry and the private sector and local and regional development practitioners. Muslim Fashion Reina Lewis, 2015-10-15 In the shops of London's Oxford Street, girls wear patterned scarves over their hair as they cluster around makeup counters. Alongside them, hip twenty somethings style their head wraps in high black topknots to match their black boot cut trousers. Participating in the world of popular mainstream fashion, often thought to be the domain of the West, these young Muslim women are part of an emergent cross faith transnational youth subculture of modest fashion. In treating hijab and other forms of modest clothing as fashion, Reina Lewis counters the overuse of images of veiled women as evidence in the prevalent suggestion that Muslims and Islam are incompatible with Western modernity. Muslim Fashion contextualizes modest wardrobe styling within Islamic and global consumer cultures, interviewing key players including designers, bloggers, shoppers, store clerks and shop owners. Focusing on Britain, North America and Turkey, Lewis provides insights into the ways young Muslim women use multiple fashion systems.
