David Mikics, 1994 This book argues that critical tradition has obscured the mutually constitutive relation between the didactic mission of Renaissance epic and the pathos of the epic self Critics usually see Spenser and Milton either as poets dedicated to an autonomous aesthetic that dictates indulgence in pathos for its own sake or as Christian moralists who subordinate pathos to the didactic demands of society The Romantic tradition that stretches from Keats to Harold Bloom exemplifies the former option Neo Christian reader response and new historicist critics assert a contrary but similarly unbalanced view by choosing the didactic authority of social custom tradition or ideology over the pathos of subjectivity Resisting attempts to establish an absolute priority for either pathos or moralizing David Mikics looks to the debate between subjective passions and didactic imperatives as a sign of the complex relation between literary creation and social norms In a study that shies away from new historicist endorsements of the force of normative ideology as well as late Romantic celebrations of the poetic self the author finds that Spenser and Milton develop an innovative literary subjectivity under the pressure of the Reformation's moralizing aims Incorporating moral force within pathos would allow poetic passion to become a worthy and clearly justifiable public stance But Spenser and Milton in their pursuit of this rhetorical ideal find themselves acknowledging instead an enduring disjunction between affect and the discursive forms of public morality which aim to discipline or exploit it BOOK JACKET Title Summary field provided by Blackwell North America Inc All Rights Reserved
