Decision Taking, Confidence and Risk Management in Banks from Early Modernity to the 20th Century Korinna Schönhärl, 2017-01-26 This book offers 14 contributions that examine key questions in bank decision taking constitution of confidence in banks and risk management practices from Early Modernity to the twentieth century It explores how the various mechanisms of bank decision taking changed over time Chapters also analyse the types of risk management techniques used the contributory factors to the constitution of confidence and the methods that banking historians can use to analyse and describe bankers risk management and decision taking from system theory to behavioural finance new institutional economics to praxeology and convention theory to network analysis The different methodological approaches are put to the test in case studies based on archive material from four hundred years of banking in order to connect banking history more closely to political and cultural history Journal of the House of Representatives of the United States United States. Deep Carbon Science Isabelle Daniel, Sabin Zahirovic, Dan J. Bower, Artur Ionescu, Mattia Pistone, Sami Mikhail, Dawn Cardace, 2021-01-04 Lymphocytes in MS and EAE: More than just a CD4+ World Manu Rangachari, Nathalie Arbour, Steven M Kerfoot, Jorge I Alvarez, 2017-10-10 Multiple sclerosis is degenerative disease of the central nervous system CNS in which myelin destruction and axon loss leads to the accumulation of physical cognitive and mental deficits MS affects more than a million people worldwide and managing this chronic disease presents a significant health challenge Multiple lines of evidence indicate that MS is an autoimmune disorder in which immune cells launch an inflammatory attack targeting myelin antigens Indeed myelin reactive T cells and antibodies have been identified in MS patients and in animal models namely experimental autoimmune encephalomyelitis or EAE that recapitulate many features of human disease Animal model studies have demonstrated that T cells are both necessary and sufficient to initiate and sustain CNS autoimmunity However most MS animal models rely on the role played by CD4 T cells and partially replicate the multiple aspects of MS pathogenesis Thus research in the past has focused heavily on the contribution of CD4 T cells to the disease process searching PubMed for MS AND CD4 yields twice the results as corresponding searches for CD8 or B cell and four times that for NK cells While CD4 T cells may represent the minimum requirement to mediate CNS autoimmunity it is clear that the immune response underlying human MS is far more complex and involves numerous other immune cells and subsets This is well illustrated by the observation that MS patients treated with an anti CD4 depleting antibody did not gain any clinical benefits whereas removal of several lymphocyte subsets using an anti CD52 depleting antibody has been shown to impede disease progression In particular the pathogenic role s of non CD4 T cell lymphocytes is relatively poorly understood and under researched

despite evidence that these subsets contribute to disease pathology or regulation For example the observed oligoclonal expansion of CD8 T cells within the CNS compartment supports a local activation CD8 T cells with polarized cytolytic granules are seen in close proximity to oligodendrocytes and demyelinated axons in MS tissues The presence of B cells in inflammatory lesions and antibodies in the CSF have long been recognized as features of MS and Rituximab a B cell depleting therapy has been shown to be highly effective to treat MS Intriguingly the putative MS therapeutic reagent Daclizumab may function in part through the expansion of a subset of immunoregulatory NK cells NKT and T cells may also play a role in CNS autoimmunity given that they respond to lipid antigens and that myelin is lipid rich While different animal models recapitulate some of these aspects of human disease identifying appropriate models and measures to investigate the role of these less well understood lymphocytes in MS remains a challenge for the field This Frontiers research topic aims to create a platform for both animal and human focused researchers to share their original data hypotheses future perspectives and commentaries regarding the role of these less well understood lymphocyte subsets CD8 T cells B cells NK cells NK T cells T cells in the pathogenesis of CNS autoimmunity

Bacterial Exotoxins: How Bacteria Fight the Immune System Inka Sastalla,Denise M. Monack,Katharina F. Kubatzky,2016-10-07 Bacterial pathogenicity factors are functionally diverse They may facilitate the adhesion and colonization of bacteria influence the host immune response assist spreading of the bacterium by e g evading recognition by immune cells or allow bacteria to dwell within protected niches inside the eukaryotic cell Exotoxins can be single polypeptides or heteromeric protein complexes that act on different parts of the cells At the cell surface they may insert into the membrane to cause damage bind to receptors to initiate their uptake or facilitate the interaction with other cell types For example bacterial superantigens specifically bind to major histocompatibility complex MHC II molecules on the surface of antigen presenting cells and the T cell receptor while cytolysins cause pore formation For intracellular activity exotoxins need to be translocated across the eukaryotic membrane Gram negative bacteria can directly inject effector proteins in a receptor independent manner by use of specialized needle apparatus such as bacterial type II III or type IV secretion systems Other methods of translocation include the phagocytic uptake of bacteria followed by toxin secretion or receptor mediated endocytosis which allows the targeting of distinct cell types Receptor based uptake is initiated by the binding of heteromeric toxin complexes to the cell surface and completed by the translocation of the effector protein s across the endosomal membrane In the cytosol toxins interact with specific eukaryotic target proteins to cause post translational modifications that often result in the manipulation of cellular signalling cascades and inflammatory responses It has become evident that the actions of some bacterial toxins may exceed their originally assumed cytotoxic function For example pore forming toxins do not only cause cytolysis but may also induce autophagy pyroptosis or activation of the MAPK pathways resulting in adjustment of the host immune response to infection and modification of inflammatory responses both locally and systemically Other recently elucidated examples of the immunomodulatory function of cell death inducing exotoxins include TcdB of Clostridium difficile which activates the inflammasome through modification of cellular Rho GTPases or the Staphylococcus d toxin which activates mast cells The goal of this research topic was to gather current knowledge on the interaction of bacterial exotoxins and effector proteins with the host immune system The following 16 research and review articles in this special issue describe mechanisms of immune modification and evasion and provide an overview over the complexity of bacterial toxin interaction with different cells of the immune system Metals Abstracts ,1996
