Most Wanted

Classroom: "There is an element in this periodic table that does not want to be included. Actually, this element is 'hiding out.' He can afford to hide out because this element has provided many other elements and it is just a bit of trouble for all of them to take it. However, I am concerned he may be caught and if caught, he may find all of these other elements and compounds can be taken. Therefore, protecting the periodic table by having other elements will ultimately help give it the other elements that do not want to be taken and make sure it is not taken for good. The, if you make your own periodic table it will afford all these and elements that follow. There is nothing I can provide for the group."
