Shallow Water Acoustic Backscatter and Reverberation Measurements Using a 68-kHz Cylindrical Array

Timothy Cole Gallaudet, 2001 The characterization of high frequency shallow water acoustic backscatter and reverberation is important because acoustic systems are used in many scientific commercial and military applications The approach taken is to use data collected by the Toroidal Volume Search Sonar TVSS a 68 kHz multibeam sonar capable of 360 deg imaging in a vertical plane perpendicular to its direction of travel With this unique capability acoustic backscatter imagery of the seafloor sea surface and horizontal and vertical planes in the volume is constructed from data obtained in 200 m deep waters in the Northeastern Gulf of Mexico when the TVSS was towed 78 m below the surface 735 m astern of a towship The processed imagery provides a quasi synoptic characterization of the spatial and temporal structure of boundary and volume acoustic backscatter and reverberation Diffraction element patterns and high sidelobe levels are shown to be the most serious problems affecting cylindrical arrays such as the TVSS and an amplitude shading method is presented for reducing the peak sidelobe levels of irregular line and non coplanar arrays Errors in the towfish s attitude and motion sensor and irregularities in the TVSS s transmitted beampattern produce artifacts in the TVSS derived bathymetry and seafloor acoustic backscatter imagery Correction strategies for these problems are described which are unique in that they use environmental information extracted from both ocean boundaries Sea surface and volume acoustic backscatter imagery is used to explore and characterize the structure of near surface bubble clouds schooling fish and zooplankton The simultaneous horizontal and vertical coverage provided by the TVSS is shown to be a primary advantage motivating further use of multibeam sonars in these applications *Proceedings of the ...
