Authorship and Text-making in Early China Hanmo Zhang, 2018-10-08 This book is a timely response to a rather urgent call to seek an updated methodology in rereading and reappraising early Chinese texts in light of newly discovered early writings. For a long time the concept of authorship in the formation and transmission of early Chinese texts has been misunderstood. The nominal author who should mainly function as a guide to text formation and interpretation is considered retrospectively as the originator and writer of the text. This book illustrates that although some notions about the text as the author's property began to appear in some Eastern Han texts, a strict correlation between the author and the text results from later conceptions of literary history. Before the modern era there existed a conceptual gap between an author and a writer. A pre-modern Chinese text could have had both an author and a writer or even multiple authors and multiple writers. This work is the first study addressing these issues by more systematically emphasizing the connection of the text, the author, and the religious and sociopolitical settings in which these issues were embedded. It is expected to constitute a palpable contribution to Chinese studies and the discipline of philology in general.

Blood and Dirt Jared Davidson, Picture for a minute every artwork of colonial New Zealand you can think of. Now add a chain gang. Hard labour men guarded by other men with guns. Men moving heavy metal. Men picking at the earth. Over and over again. This was the reality of nineteenth century New Zealand. Forced labour haunts the streets we walk today and the spaces we take for granted. The unfree work of prisoners has shaped New Zealand's urban centres and rural landscapes and Te Moana nui a Kiwa the Pacific in profound and unsettling ways. Yet these stories are largely unknown, a hidden history in plain sight. Blood and Dirt explains for the first time the making of New Zealand and its Pacific empire through the prism of prison labour. Jared Davidson asks us to look beyond the walls of our nineteenth and early twentieth century prisons to see penal practice as playing an active central role in the creation of modern New Zealand. Journeying from the Hohi mission station in the Bay of Islands through to Milford Sound, vast forest plantations and on to Parliament itself, this vivid and engaging book will change the way you view New Zealand.

J. Ivanhoe, 2016 Recent interest in Confucianism has a tendency to suffer from essentialism and idealism manifested in a variety of ways One example is to think of Confucianism in terms of the views attributed to one representative of the tradition such as Kongzi Confucius 551 479 BCE or Mengzi Mencius 372 289 BCE or one school or strand of the tradition most often the strand or tradition associated with Mengzi or in the later tradition that formed around the commentaries and interpretation of Zhu Xi 1130 1200 Another such tendency is to think of Confucianism in terms of its manifestations in only one country this is almost always China for the obvious reasons that China is one of the most powerful and influential states in the world today A third tendency is to present Confucianism in terms of only one period or moment in the tradition for example among ethical and political philosophers pre Qin Confucianism usually taken to be the writings attributed to Kongzi Mengzi and if we are lucky Xunzi 479 221 BCE often is taken as Confucianism These and other forms of essentialism and idealism have led to a widespread and deeply entrenched impression that Confucianism is thoroughly homogenous and monolithic these often are facts mustered to support the purportedly oppressive authoritarian and constricted nature of the tradition such impressions can be found throughout East Asia and dominate in the West This is quite deplorable for it gives us no genuine sense of the creatively rich philosophically powerful highly variegated and still very much open ended nature of the Confucian tradition This volume addresses this misconstrual and misrepresentation of Confucianism by presenting a philosophically critical account of different Confucian thinkers and schools across place China Korea and Japan and time the 10th to 19th centuries

Languages, scripts, and Chinese texts in East Asia Peter Francis Kornicki, 2018-01-19 Chinese Writing and the Rise of the Vernacular in East Asia is a wide ranging study of vernacularization in East Asia not only China Japan Korea and Vietnam but also societies that no longer exist such as the Tangut and Khitan empires Peter Kornicki takes the reader from the early centuries of the common era when the Chinese script was the only form of writing and Chinese Buddhist Confucian and medical texts spread throughout East Asia through the centuries when vernacular scripts evolved right up to the end of the nineteenth century when nationalism created new roles for vernacular languages and vernacular scripts Through an examination of oral approaches to Chinese texts it shows how highly valued Chinese texts came to be read through the prism of the vernaculars and ultimately to be translated This long process has some parallels with vernacularization in Europe but a crucial difference is that literary Chinese was unlike Latin not a spoken language As a consequence people who spoke different East Asian vernaculars had no means of communicating in speech but they could communicate silently by means of written conversation in literary Chinese a further consequence is that within each society Chinese texts assumed vernacular garb in classes and lectures Chinese texts were read and declaimed in the vernaculars What happened in the nineteenth century and why are there still so many different scripts in East Asia How and why were Chinese texts dethroned and what replaced them These are some of the questions addressed in Chinese Writing and the Rise of the Vernacular in East Asia Archaeological Perspectives on Conflict and Warfare in Australia and the Pacific Geoffrey Clark, Mirani Litster, 2022-03-08 When James Boswell famously lamented the irrationality of war in 1777 he noted the universality of conflict across history and across space even reaching what he described as the gentle and benign southern ocean nations This volume discusses archaeological evidence of conflict from those southern oceans from Palau and Guam to Australia Vanuatu and Tonga the Marquesas Easter Island and New Zealand The evidence for conflict and warfare encompasses defensive earthworks on Palau fortifications on Tonga and intricate pa sites in New Zealand It reports evidence of reciprocal sacrifice to appease deities in several island nations and skirmishes and smaller scale conflicts including in Easter Island This volume traces aspects of colonial era conflict in Australia and frontier battles in Vanuatu and discusses depictions of World War II materiel in the rock art of Arnhem Land Among the causes and motives discussed in these papers are pressure on resources the ebb and flow of significant climate events and the significant association of conflict with culture contact The volume necessarily selective eclectic and wide ranging includes an incisive introduction that situates the evidence persuasively in the broader scholarship addressing the history of human warfare Practical Applications of Computational Biology and Bioinformatics, 12th International Conference Florentino Fdez-Riverola, Mohd Saberi Mohamad, Miguel Rocha, Juan F.
