Conflict and Decision-making in Close Relationships Erich Kirchler,2001 Central to the authors research is a unique diary study of 40 couples who kept a daily record of their joint decisions over the course of a year The diaries show how challenging varied and complex the conflicts and decision making of normal everyday life can be and reveal that frequently goals change during the decision making process with the result that the final outcome often achieves a goal distinct from the original intention Furthermore the dynamics of decision making differ with the problem at stake the decision making history of the couple and the quality of the partnership The results of the diary study are discussed within the overall context of current research in the field as a whole including discussion of joint decision making case studies close relationships decision making research in general and special research methods The New Photographer ,1927 Deriving Trust Supporting Components for Ubiquitous Information Systems Söllner, Matthias,2014-01-01 Ubiquitous information systems UIS are proposed to represent a fundamental paradigm shift in information systems research Despite the advantages of such systems they also come with disadvantages such as their increasing automation and opaqueness When aiming to develop UIS that are readily adopted and used by their intended users those disadvantages need to be addressed A promising approach to overcome this challenge is fostering the users trust in UIS Matthias Söllner presents a method for deriving trust supporting components for UIS based on existing insights from literature as well as a new theoretical approach on the formation of trust in UIS The empirical evaluation of the method shows that the trust supporting components increase the users trust as well as their intention to adopt a UIS The book targets researchers lecturers and students in information systems business administration and human computer interaction It also provides insights for practitioners who develop UIS Military Construction Appropriations for 1957 United States.
