New Perennial Planting Guide For Novices And Dummies Sandra Bronson,2020-11-13 Perennials are plants that live for at least 2 consecutive years Technically herbaceous perennials die back in the fall and winter and then turn the following growing season Some perennials only live for 2 years while others may live for thousands of years Unlike annuals which last only a single growing season and depend on rapid growth a perennial grows from the root enabling it to bloom through multiple growing seasons There are hundreds of different types of perennials which vary in size from less than 1 inch to 54 meters tall Some perennials flourish in bloom while others like ferns and grasses are planted for their texture and foliage Unlike annuals perennials in your garden do not need to be replanted In most regions the ideal time to plant perennials is in late spring plants have the time to become established before the hot summer months do not replant while the ground is still frozen or the temperature is below 25 degrees Fahrenheit 38 degrees Celsius Plant perennials in the fall before the first frost Perennials planted after the first frost will do not survive because their root system does not have time to get established before the ground freezes Research a perennial to determine when its ideal planting time The best time to plant perennials is during the dormant growing period of a professional at a local garden center but the best time to plant a perennial plant Evaluate whether to plant perennials in a garden in a location in the garden For example, do not plant perennials in a full shade around a tree or in a grouping that may block a yard Determine how much sunlight the area receives This will be an important factor in planting the perennials in the location
