

Strongly recommend that you prepare the following questions in advance.

Remember, we have about 100 different ways to construct a sample of 10000. Suppose we get 10000 values (just using the population of values 1-10000) and sample 100 of them. Then, there is only one way to get the sample mean and hence a population of sample means. But, suppose I bootstrap off of a 10000 value population and sample 10000 means. I will get the same distribution of sample means. The sample population suggests themselves, and what effect does the population distribution have on the distribution of sample means?

Exercise 2.1: Population and Sample Distributions and Their Relationships

1. Answer as asked to:

a. Which distribution shows the largest spread?

Individual observations

b. Which is the mean of the bootstrap samples?

The mean of the population

c. Sketch the area of a single random sample (what does booting do?)

Sketch the area of the population

d. Sketch the arrangement of the data in random 1

Uniform

e. Sketch the arrangement of the data in random 2

Clumped

f. Distribution known by knowing the number of observations in each random sample? (What is the distribution of the data in the population?)

Random No.	Population	How is bootstrap?	How is bootstrap?
1	1	10	5
2	2	20	10
3	3	30	15
4	4	40	20
5	5	50	25

2. Answer as asked to:

a. Which distribution has the greatest spread?

100 1000 10000 100000 1000000

b. Which random sample has the least spread?

100 1000 10000 100000 1000000
