Pbl Client Service:

Handbook of Research on Entrepreneurship in Professional Services Markus Reihlen, Andreas Werr, 2012-01-01

Professional service firms are critical agents of contemporary economies and understanding them has become a central focus of recent scholarship. This very timely and well organized Handbook brings together several leading scholars who explore how we might think and theorize about professional service firms and their entrepreneurial behaviours. The Handbook will become a key source for the growing community of researchers in this area. Royston Greenwood University of Alberta Canada. For too long both researchers and practitioners have presumed that professional service firms follow the status quo when they should better understand how these professionals set the rules for globalization. This Handbook reminds us that professionals are as much the shock troops of capitalism as the multinational corporations that they serve. As this Handbook shows, the leading firms successfully compete with each other by fostering entrepreneurship and innovation in order to service an institutional system that undergirds the international economy. Christopher McKenna University of Oxford UK. Professional services are increasingly seen as an important foundation for future economic growth and prosperity. Yet research on innovative and entrepreneurial processes in professional services has been surprisingly scarce. This Handbook provides a collection of original contributions from leading scholars outlining the current stock of knowledge in the area as well as providing directions for further research. The expert contributors discuss entrepreneurship and innovation from a number of different perspectives including the entrepreneurial professional team, the entrepreneurial firm, and the institutional environment. The first part of the book looks at the challenges of entrepreneurship specific to the professional service firm, while the second explores the creation and exploitation of entrepreneurial opportunities in the professional service team. Part III turns to the organization and Part IV to the management and growth of the entrepreneurial professional service firm. The final part discusses the interplay between professions, firms, and the institutional environment. Researchers, scholars, and PhD students in the areas of entrepreneurship and professional service firms, along with advanced students of management, will find this volume of great value.

Taking eService-Learning to the Next Level Jean R. Strait, Robert D. Shumer, Katherine J. Nordyke, 2023-08-01

The chapters in this book provide an excellent story of the growth of e learning and eService learning over the past many years. Strait takes us from the first chapter examining current issues and considerations for eService Learning to a second chapter that documents the growth and maturation of a program at Missouri State University to chapters that introduce critical e service learning with a social justice orientation. Gordon and Jackson Brown and chapters that address international experiences. Ong Tan et al and Dietrich and Ekici that involve eService learning in Singapore and long distance relationships between the U S and Afghanistan to illustrate the multiplicity and diversity of current models of service and learning that occur through electronic means. The importance of the book and its chapters is that change happens. What was occurring in the early 21st century was altered by situations such as the global pandemic of COVID 19 to increase the reliance on e educational systems and promote the increased use of electronic educational programs that covered almost all areas of educational systems. While early mobile phones existed in the 1970s, Teixeira T 2010, they evolved and more sophisticated versions were produced throughout the 20th century. By the end of the century, phones that could easily transmit emails were developed and then came camera phones and then smart phones by 2003. And phone communication has continued to change, existing today as a total communication device used by people all over the world. Similarly, video and visual systems have evolved and continue to change. Zoom was developed in 2011 and has continued to evolve and expand services all over the world. People are now able to visually and orally communicate with others on every continent 24 hours a day and the complexity and utility of communication has similarly expanded. Now phones can instantaneously translate between languages and people in all parts of the world can share experiences and visual products without barriers of language, country or time. Indeed, the electronic world is an amazing entity and continues to evolve each year. So what are the implications of all these changes for education and service? Simply put, they are and will continue to evolve to more complex and more useful forms for all communication and interaction. And this current volume gives us much insight into the important areas of change in both e learning and eService learning. All the chapters add great insight and information about important issues in the field and highlight some of the critical concepts embedded in its development.
