

Patient Interview Reflection Paper 2

Overall, I believe I saw improvement in the standardized patient interview. This interview had a new aspect introduced of motivational interviewing. I was able to exhibit the skills important in interviewing and communication. I began the interview with rapport building by greeting the patient with my name and asking the patient how her day was. I then structured the interview by telling the patient what would occur during the appointment. I did ask the patient's main concern but do believe that I could have worked on asking the patient about their health values and beliefs more to get a more comprehensive background of the patient. In regard to nonverbal communication, I maintained a comfortable distance from the patient and maintained eye contact while facing the patient directly. The patient did say in the feedback session that they felt that I appeared interested in what the patient said and cared for her. She also perceived the empathy that I expressed. As far as word choice, I deliberately avoided jargon and attempted to use appropriate language. I do believe I could improve on the area of asking for understanding of the patient.

Reflecting on my motivational interviewing skills, there are areas of improvement I can work on. I attempted to use open-ended questions but could certainly incorporate more open-ended questions. I used a few affirmations acknowledging the patient's willpower to stop smoking. I believe I could have also used more affirmations. I reflected

Conducting patient interviews within a clinical trial setting Dana B DiBenedetti, Sheri Fehnel, Carla J. DeMuro-Mercon, Tammy Michelle Brown, Claire M Ervin, Sandy Anne Lewis, 2018-08-14 Qualitative data centered on patients experiences and perspectives typically go uncollected in clinical trial settings Yet patients treatment experiences offer complementary insights and context on topics such as disease management treatment gaps and previous treatments outside of those gathered in traditional patient reported outcome questionnaires Qualitative interviews can capture patients perceptions of treatment needs more fully explore meaningful changes experienced as a result of treatment and reveal outcomes that are most important to patients Asking patients detailed questions can provide insight into the why of a patient s expressed thought or feeling The inclusion of patient interviews within clinical trials is a relatively new and evolving field of research This article delineates the types of data that may be collected during interviews with clinical trial participants and outlines two approaches to conducting qualitative research in the clinical trial setting with a focus on maximizing the value of the resulting data

Tweedie, Robert C. Johnson, 2022-02-21 In this first book length treatment of MELF the authors assert that MELF represents an important contribution to our understanding of English as a Lingua Franca ELF in that existing ELF research has been limited to relatively low stakes communicative situations such as interactions in business academia internet blogging or casual conversations Medical contexts in contrast often represent situations calling for exceptional communicative precision and urgency Providing both evidence from their own research and analysis from the limited number of existing studies the authors offer a counterpoint to the optimism regarding communicative success prevalent in ELF The book proposes a theoretical perspective on how the various features of healthcare communication serve as important variables in shaping interaction among speakers of ELF further enlarging our understanding of this emerging sub field
