First, the study was a cross-sectional study and therefore cannot establish a causal relationship between the variables. Second, the study was conducted in a single country and therefore may not be generalizable to other countries in the region. Third, the study did not include a control group for the HIV and AIDS infection. Fourth, the study did not include a control group for the use of traditional medicine. Finally, the study did not include a control group for the use of modern medicine.
