Ecopolis Paul F. Downton, 2008-11-19 From 2008 for the first time in human history half of the world s population now live in cities Yet despite a wealth of literature on green architecture and planning there is to date no single book which draws together theory from the full range of disciplines from architecture planning and ecology which we must come to grips with if we are to design future cities which are genuinely sustainable Paul Downton's Ecopolis takes a major step along this path. It highlights the urgent need to understand the role of cities as both agents of change and means of survival at a time when climate change has finally grabbed world attention and it provides a framework for designing cities that integrates knowledge both academic and practical from a range of relevant disciplines. Identifying key theorists, practitioners, places and philosophies, the book provides a solid theoretical context which introduces the concept of urban fractals and goes on to present a series of design and planning tools for achieving Sustainable Human Ecological Development. SHED: Combining knowledge from diverse fields to present a synthesis of urban ecology, the book will provide a valuable resource for students, researchers and practitioners in architecture, construction, planning, geography and the traditional life sciences.

Community Gardening as Social Action Claire Nettle, 2016-05-23

There has been a resurgence of community gardening over the past decade with a wide range of actors seeking to get involved from health agencies aiming to increase fruit and vegetable consumption to radical social movements searching for symbols of non-capitalist ways of relating and occupying space. Community gardens have become a focal point for local activism in which people are working to contribute to food security, question the erosion of public space, conserve and improve urban environments, develop technologies of sustainable food production, foster community engagement, and create neighbourhood solidarity. Drawing on in-depth case studies and social movement theory, Claire Nettle provides a new empirical and theoretical understanding of community gardening as a site of collective social action. This provides not only a more nuanced and complete understanding of community gardening but also highlights its potential challenges to notions of activism, community democracy, and culture.

Power at the Roots Miranda J. Martinez,2010-09-25 Through direct engagement with gardeners activists and residents Miranda Martinez shows the breadth and diversity of the community gardening movement and how these groups inserted themselves into local politics and development to create change She demonstrates how real people are effective as social forces amid large scale urban change and looks at the complexities and contradictions involved in transformations of urban neighborhoods One of the most important contributions of this study is its focus on the Puerto Ricans of the Lower East Side and their struggle to sustain its Latinidad It goes deeply into the ethnic and cultural significance at the neighborhood and personal level to show the contradictory meanings of gentrification to Puerto Ricans and others and more importantly the ways that the history and culture of Puerto Ricans are ignored devalued and erased By going to the grassroots this book vividly demonstrates how Puerto Ricans interact with the global and local trends involved in gentrification and how the struggles against displacement can alter the boundaries of the process

Mothers United Andrea Dyrness,2013-11-30 In urban American school systems the children of recent immigrants and low income parents of color disproportionately suffer from overcrowded classrooms lack of access to educational resources and underqualified teachers The challenges posed by these problems demand creative solutions that must often begin with parental intervention But how can parents without college educations American citizenship English literacy skills or economic stability organize to initiate change on behalf of their children and their community In Mothers United Andrea Dyrness chronicles the experiences of five Latina immigrant mothers in Oakland California one of the most troubled urban school districts in the country as they become informed and engaged advocates for their children's education. These women, who called themselves Madres Unidas (Mothers United), joined a neighborhood group of teachers and parents to plan a new small and autonomous neighborhood-based school to replace the overcrowded Whitman School. Collaborating with the author among others to conduct interviews and focus groups with teachers, parents, and students, these mothers moved from isolation and marginality to take on unfamiliar roles as researchers and community activists while facing resistance from within the local school district. Mothers United illuminates the mothers' journey to create their own space centered around the kitchen table that enhanced their capacity to improve their children's lives. At the same time, Dyrness critiques how community organizers, teachers, and educational policy makers, despite their democratic rhetoric, repeatedly asserted their right as experts reproducing the injustice they hoped to overcome. A powerful, inspiring story about self-learning, consciousness-raising, and empowerment, Mothers United offers important lessons for school reform movements everywhere.

Unearthing Lifestances Lori G. Beaman, Ryan T. Cragun, Douglas Ezzy, 2025-11-03. A growing number of people across the western world are identifying as nonreligious. This book examines this shift through the lens of community gardens. We do not ask people what they believe in ways that are abstracted from their everyday lives. Rather, by focusing on gardening, we enter the world of action: what people do, the practices of their everyday lives. Drawing on interviews from community gardeners in Argentina, Australia, Brazil, Canada, England, Finland, Norway, Northern Ireland, and the United States, the book explores themes of community building, ritual, ethics, and relationships with humans, non-humans, and the natural world, arguing for their conceptualization as lifestances. The book reveals a shifting sensibility about the relationship between humans and the world around them. That relationship is shifting from a vertical relationship to a horizontal one, from a relationship of human dominance to a relationship of shared responsibility and equality. This is possible because there is an increasing recognition that the current hierarchical model based in religious teachings and human exceptionalism is untenable. Community gardens offer an ideal vantage point from which to explore these changes.
