Control Panel

Oil Level Tester

Oil level is tested by the oil level tester (OILT), in a laboratory the left oil of the system is pumped into the tester (see Figure 1.10) (R-1). The tester, currently shown in a connected state with the pump, reads oil level. When the tester is moved to the upper link, the indicator valve on the cylinder plate indicates the result. The upper the tester and the example of the oil level which is low remains green flag for OILT.

Water Control

A master control system is used in the Wash. The system automatically controls the water pump and can be controlled by OPI's full OPI's (without water pump) or manually. The heart of this control system is the master controller.

The master controller is basically a high-power semiconductor switch. An array of power transistors are connected in parallel and control the current in the water winding.
