Some living things are dangerous to people. For example, some plants may be poisonous. If such plants are eaten one may die, children need to keep away from such plants. Some other plants have thorns. These thorns prick people. This can cause swelling and fever.

Some animals are also dangerous to people, such animals attack and kill people. They also kill domestic animals. Other animals like monkeys and rats destroy our crops. Insects like houseflies, fleas and mosquitoes spread diseases, cockroaches and termites destroy our books, crops and clothes. Bed bugs bite people. People do not feel good when these insects bite them.

Generations Past Andrew Burton,Hélène Charton-Bigot,2010-09-15 Contemporary Africa is demographically characterized above all else by its youthfulness In East Africa the median age of the population is now a striking 17 5 years and more than 65 percent of the population is age 24 or under This situation has attracted growing scholarly attention resulting in an important and rapidly expanding literature on the position of youth in African societies While the scholarship examining the contemporary role of youth in African societies is rich and growing the historical dimension has been largely neglected in the literature thus far Generations Past seeks to address this gap through a wide ranging selection of essays that covers an array of youth related themes in historical perspective Thirteen chapters explore the historical dimensions of youth in nineteenth twentieth and twenty first century Ugandan Tanzanian and Kenyan societies Key themes running through the book include the analytical utility of youth as a social category intergenerational relations and the passage of time youth as a social and political problem sex and gender roles among East African youth and youth as historical agents of change The strong list of contributors includes prominent scholars of the region and the collection encompasses a good geographical spread of all three East African countries Proceedings of the EAISR Conference ,1963 School Libraries in Uganda Syed A.
