

Remember that walls on the exterior side and floor panels through the ceiling have a recessed air flow compartment on the inside.

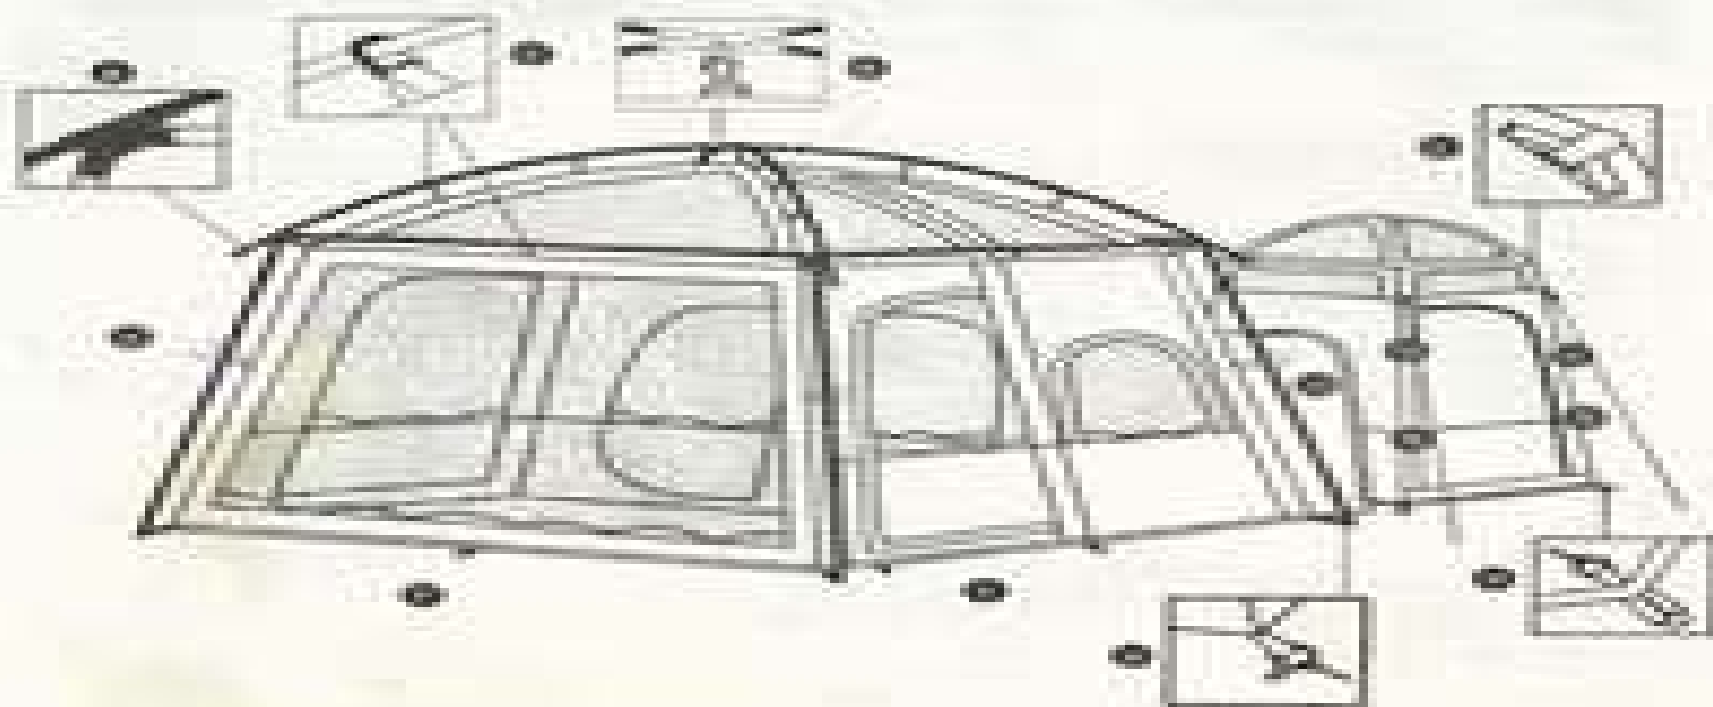

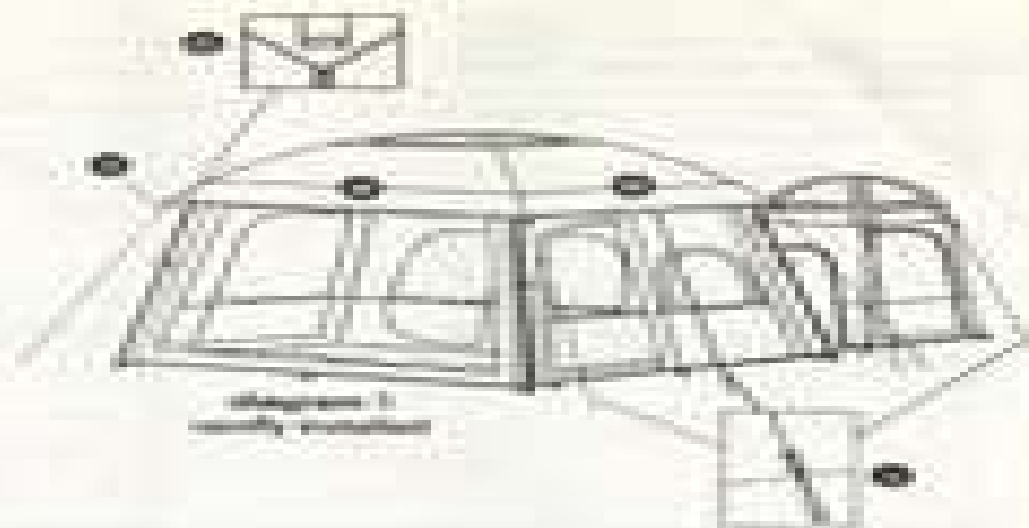

Install the gusset lines as provided on the back.

It is recommended that the interior support the floor, but large recessed baffles can add strength to structure to help maintain pressure and weight.

Using the ceiling board as a reference:

The ceiling and structure is designed to be used in 2 phases. In use it is generally over some changing room or storage area. There are many compartments through the structure that can be used for storage. Unlike the hanging board and wall that are hanging on the exterior structure.

Make sure that you have positioned the ceiling board as a place where you can see the interior of the structure.
