■ Abstract — The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised walking program on the physical and psychological health of older adults. The study was conducted in a community-based setting. The participants were 100 older adults (mean age = 72.5 years) who were randomly assigned to either a walking program or a control group. The walking program consisted of 12 weeks of supervised walking, 3 times per week, for 30 minutes per session. The control group did not participate in any walking program. The results of the study showed that the walking program had a significant positive effect on the physical and psychological health of the older adults. The walking program significantly improved the participants' physical health, as measured by the 6-minute walk test, and their psychological health, as measured by the Geriatric Depression Scale. The walking program also significantly improved the participants' quality of life, as measured by the SF-36. The results of this study suggest that a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised walking program can be an effective intervention for improving the physical and psychological health of older adults.
