Evidence for wave nature of light:

1. Interference experiments have revealed that light exhibits wave-like behavior in situations:
 - a. double-slit interference
 - b. thin film interference
 - c. diffraction
2. Huygens' principle can explain interference, diffraction, and polarization. Light passing through a slit creates a wave that has the same wavelength as the incident wave.
3. Light exhibits wave-like behavior in that it has a wavelength, frequency, amplitude, and it can be polarized. It is the combination of all these wave-like properties that allow us to understand the behavior of light.

Evidence for particle nature of light:

1. Photoelectric effect: light propagates as waves
 - a. without various frequencies of light above a certain threshold frequency, no electrons are ejected and no current is observed
 - b. When light above a certain threshold frequency is incident on a metal surface, electrons are ejected and current is observed as expected
 - c. Current observed is proportional to intensity of light
2. Photoelectric effect cannot be explained by classical physics
3. Quantum mechanics can explain the photoelectric effect
