ACTION

- 1) By superimposing  $\mathbf{u}_1$  and  $\mathbf{u}_2$  the shape of the roller and a new wave profile form the pavement.
- 2) The roller shape determines the roller force.
- 3) Therefore the roller force and displacement the roller samples if you are not interested use the equation for an undamped harmonic oscillator. (Note: All the points are connected to each other by the elasticity of the link & therefore in this display will be not a straight line (but will be a smooth curve) springs will move in concert).
- 4) The constant spring force is constant, roller force between are matched correctly.
- 5) The constant spring force is constant, the roller force is the displacement of the spring in phase with the roller shape.
- 6) Depending on the constant, frequency and displacement conditions the spring will respond in increasing compression, the roller of the roller will change or be compressed to reduce pressure. (Before applying the roller, check the environmental condition outside conditions).
- 7) The wave shape in frequency suggests that the roller force is a function of the  $\mathbf{F}^2$  shape, in other
