Developmental Milestones

Developmental milestones are important journeys that everyone takes throughout out life. Once a mother first finds out that she is pregnant the child in which she is carrying begins to embark on their journey of life. Everyone does not reach their milestones on target or even at all. Each person is at a different stage in their life, therefore their milestones and journey will vary, from one to the other. My particular journey and development has followed the path of Psychologist Erik Erikson's psychosocial stages of human development. I am currently between stages five and six. Stage five is identity vs. identity confusion and stage six is intimacy vs. isolation. Although I am a young adult I am still developing and hitting milestones on my journey of life.

Her water was broken and at that time I stopped moving down. She did not dilate anymore. Once dilation stopped it was found that the umbilical was wrapped around my neck. Although the cord caused stress and my heart rate to drop while in labor, it did not cause any other known complications once I was born. She was in labor for two days.

Developmental milestones are important in a child's life. Developmental milestones have a wide range of different functional skills that a child is able to do as they hit certain ages. "Infancy and childhood are dynamic periods of growth and change" (Gerber, Wilks, & Erdie-Larena, 2010). At each age a child is supposed to reach milestones in their life that would consider them as developing normal. If the child does not reach that particular milestone for their age then they are considered to have a developmental delay. Developmental milestones are associated with a child's gross motor, cognitive, social, language, and fine motor skills. When a child develops their gross motor skills they are able to walk, stand, and sit. They learn how to use their major...

Human Behavior and Environment Irwin Altman, Joachim F. Wohlwill, 2012-12-06 The papers comprising this second volume of Human Behavior and the Environment represent as do their predecessors a cross section of current work in the broad area of problems dealing with interrelation ships between the physical environment and human behavior at both the individual and the aggregate levels Considering the two volumes as a unit we have included papers covering a broad spectrum of problems ranging from the theoretical to the applied and from the disciplinary based to the interdisciplinary and professional Approxi mately half of the papers are written by psychologists with the remainder coming in part from such other disciplines as sociology geography and from such diverse applied and professional fields as natural recreation landscape architecture urban planning and opera tions research The volumes thus provide an overview of work on current topical problems Yet as the field is developing specialization is inevitably increasing apace and the editors as well as the publisher have become convinced of the desirability for futu re volumes in this series to be organized along topical lines with successive volumes devoted to different aspects of this rather sprawling field Thus Volume 3 currently in the planning stage
