XXIII Tatsuo Tokoo, Bruce Barker-Benfield, 2013-06-17 Garland s magnificent facsimile series of the manuscripts of Percy Bysshe Shelley and Mary Wollstonecraft Shelley in the Bodleian Library Oxford The Bodleian Shelley Manuscripts 22

volumes 1986-1997 is now made complete by the publication of its Index volume. Volume XXIII provides the key to the contents of the Shelleyan notebooks and papers in all their complexity: poems, prose translations, fragments, calculations, drawing and doodles, addresses and other miscellaneous jottings. The accumulated findings provide a treasure trove of information about the Shelley's lives, their writings and readings, and echoes of classical and later authors, the people they met, corresponded with, rented houses from or saw perform, the towns they visited, the very houses in which they lived, the lakes and rivers they sailed, and the mountains they climbed. The intellectual and physical data of these manuscripts will help open new vistas for students of their lives, thought, and creative writing.

Temple Bar George Augustus Sala, Edmund Yates, 1893 The Saturday Review of Politics, Literature, Science, Art, and Finance, 1929 The Saturday Review of Politics, Literature, Science and Art, 1929 Boot and Shoe Recorder, 1919 Language Talent and Brain Activity

Grzegorz Dogil, Susanne Maria Reiterer, 2009-07-29 This comprehensive project has the objective of describing and assessing pronunciation talent with special focus on its psychological and neural correlates. The first part of this undertaking describes the extensive tests necessary to measure phonetic talent in its various dimensions such as production and perception, the segmental and suprasegmental levels of speech and different utterance forms such as spontaneous speech, reading and imitation. Subjects are examined in their native language German, a familiar second language English, and to a lesser degree an unfamiliar language Hindi. The project also investigates psychological and behavioral influences such as empathy or motivation on pronunciation performance as well as correlations with general linguistic aptitude. The described measures and correlations allow a reliable classification of proficiency and talent level to be used in the selection of subjects for the neuroimaging studies in the second part of the project. These use functional magnetic resonance imaging in order to observe differences in brain activity between talented and untalented individuals during the performance of phonetic tasks: perception of phonetic differences, imitation, reading.

Philips, 2007-11-01 Organised around each decade of the post war period this book analyses novels written by and for women from 1945 to the present Each chapter identifies a specific genre in popular fiction for women which marked that period and provides case studies focusing on writers and texts which enjoyed a wide readership Despite their popularity these novels remain largely outside the canon of women s writing and are often unacknowledged by feminist literary criticism However these texts clearly touched a nerve with a largely female readership and so offer a means of charting the changes in ideals of femininity and in the tensions and contradictions in gender identities in the post war period Their analysis offers new insights into the shifting demands aspirations and expectations of what a woman could and should be over the last half century Through her analysis of women s writing and reading Philips sets out to challenge the distinction between popular and literary fiction arguing that neat categories such as popular middle brow and serious fiction need more careful definition
