By claiming that it does not necessarily belong to any one mind in particular is inferring then that the self is not in fact a property. Then how can it be said to exist? Thomas Reid (Macquarie, lecture 17) also raises an important objection to Locke's theory of personal identity that seems fairly self-evident to me. We can consider a man as: a child, then in middle age and at old age. If the man in middle age can remember occurrences when he was a young boy, but now that he is an old man can't, then can he be considered a different person from the young boy?

Of Personal Identity Hume

According to Locke the old man is the same as the middle aged one, and the middle aged is the same as the child. Yet there is no continuity of consciousness between the three, any break in memory would render them a 'non-person' if we follow Locke's argument-clearly it is logically inconsistent. David Hume's 'bundle theory' of the self seems to me rather more logically coherent. He claimed that humans tend to think of themselves as the same person as they were, say, 10 years ago; that we believed that although one had evolved over the period in a number of ways that the self had endured.

According to Hume however, this was a mistake, and when examined empirically no more than a practical habit: "I never can catch myself at any time without a perception, and never observe anything but the perception"(TI, vi, p. 251). It is clear, posits Hume, our thoughts and perceptions flow from one idea to the next; so we encounter a 'bundle', or grouping, of perceptions throughout our life but no actual continuous and enduring underlying self- or "I" -as a 'unity of consciousness'.

While there is a stability of perceptions over the short term, and some loose association of experiences, there is no overarching continuity of "I" in reality. Hume agrees that we extend over time in actions, we begin a job and finish it some time later, and that our desires also extend in some sort of continuity over time. Furthermore our physical bodies endure reasonably consistently; we age gradually. This according to Hume is what ultimately defines our sense of personal identity. While Hume's theory of the self is attractive in my view, if anything it doesn't go far Personal Identity and Buddhist Philosophy Mark Siderits, 2017-05-15 Since the publication of Mark Siderits important book in 2003 much has changed in the field of Buddhist philosophy There has been unprecedented growth in analytic metaphysics and a considerable amount of new work on Indian theories of the self and personal identity has emerged Fully revised and updated and drawing on these changes as well as on developments in the author s own thinking Personal Identity and Buddhist Philosophy second edition explores the conversation between Buddhist and Western Philosophy showing how concepts and tools drawn from one philosophical tradition can help solve problems arising in another Siderits discusses afresh areas involved in the philosophical investigation of persons including vagueness and its implications for personal identity recent attempts by scholars of Buddhist philosophy to defend the attribution of an emergentist account of personhood to at least some Buddhists and whether a distinctively Buddhist antirealism can avoid problems that beset other forms of ontological anti foundationalism Personal and Moral Identity A.W.

Musschenga, A.W. van Haaften, B. Spiecker, M.V. Slors, 2013-03-14 The subject of personal and moral identity is at the centre of interest not only of academic research within disciplines such as philosophy and psychology but also of everyday thinking This is why the Netherlands School for Research in Practical Philosophy and the Institute for Ethics of the Vrije Universiteit in Amsterdam took the initiative to bring together scholars from various disciplines interested in the subject The expert seminar on Personal and Moral Identity took place from 12-14 January 1999 Financial contributions from the Vrije Universiteit the Dutch Scientific Organisation NWO and the Royal Dutch Academy for the Sciences KNA W made the event possible The chapters in this book either go back to papers presented at the seminar or were written afterwards by participants inspired by the discussions that took place during the seminar We are very grateful to Dr Hendrik Hutter for his assistance in editing the texts and making the manuscript camera ready December 2001 The Editors 1 Introduction Albert W Musschenga Although scholars studying the identity of persons usually address diverging issues and have different research agendas there is a growing awareness that one may benefit from insights and results present in other disciplines dealing with that subject This explains the enthusiastic responses to the invitation of the Netherlands School for Research in Practical Philosophy and the Institute for Ethics of the Vrije Universiteit to participate in a seminar on Personal and Moral Identity

Personal Identity and Literature Patrick Colm Hogan, 2019-05-17 In Personal Identity and Literature Hogan examines what makes an individual a particular unique self He draws on cognitive and affective science as well as literary works from Walt Whitman and Frederick Douglass to Dorothy Richardson Alice Munro and J M Coetzee His scholarly analyses are also intertwined with more personal reflections on for example his mother's memory loss The result is a work that examines a complex topic by drawing on a unique range of resources from empirical psychology and philosophy to novels films and biographical experiences The book provides a clear systematic account of personal identity that is theoretically strong but also unique and engaging

Self and Identity Yoshihisa Kashima, Margaret Foddy, Michael Plator, 2002-04-01 This edited volume outlines the latest meta theoretical and theoretical contexts of self research Self and Identity examines theoretical accounts of human experience within the contemporary socio cultural milieu and attempts to answer the question of what it means to be human It provides a clear structure within which to conceptualize contemporary empirical research on self and identity in terms of personal social and symbolic aspects In so doing it identifies the symbolic aspect as an emerging area of contemporary significance Featuring contributions from a distinguished group of scholars and therapists the book is organized into four parts The editors provide section introductions to demonstrate how each chapter relates to the book's overall theme as well as how the chapter authors responded to the editors' charge to go beyond the social cognitive theory of the self Part I describes the current meta theoretical context of self research the editors' interpretation of the social cognitive approach to the self and an emerging alternative theory the Connectionist Approach Part II highlights personal perspectives on selfhood Part III focuses on social perspectives and Part IV reviews symbolic processes The concluding chapter reviews the book's major themes with overlapping themes and intellectual disputes The book is intended for graduate students and researchers in social and personality psychology interested in self and identity and self research It may also be used as a supplemental text in advanced level courses on self and identity

Objects and Identity Harold W. Noonan, 2013-03-09 Identity has for long been an important concept in philosophy and logic Plato in his Sophist puts same among those forms which run through all others The scholastics inherited the idea and the terminology classifying same as one of the transcendentals i e as running through all the categories The work of Locke and Leibniz made the concept a problematic one But it is rather recently i e since the importance of Frege has been generally recognized that there has been a keen interest in the notion formulated by him of a criterion of identity This at first sight harmless as well as useful has proved to be like a charge of dynamite The seed had indeed been sown long ago by Euclid In Book V of his Elements he first gives a useless definition of a ratio A ratio is a sort of relation between two magnitudes in respect of muchness But then in definition 5 he answers not the question What is a ratio but rather What is it for magnitudes to be in the same ratio and this is the definition that does the work

The Identities of Persons Amélie Rorty, 1976-11-15 In this volume thirteen philosophers contribute new essays analyzing the criteria for personal identity and their import on ethics and the theory of action it presents contemporary treatments of the issues discussed in Personal Identity edited by John Perry University of California Press 1975
