Teaching Computing Henry M. Walker, 2018-04-24 Teaching can be intimidating for beginning faculty. Some graduate schools and some computing faculty provide guidance and mentoring, but many do not. Often a new faculty member is assigned to teach a course with little guidance, input, or feedback. Teaching Computing: A Practitioner's Perspective addresses such challenges by providing a solid resource for both new and experienced computing faculty. The book serves as a practical, easy-to-use resource covering a wide range of topics in a collection of focused, down-to-earth chapters. Based on the author's extensive teaching experience and his teaching-oriented columns that span 20 years and informed by computing education research, the book provides numerous elements designed to connect with teaching practitioners, including a wide range of teaching topics and basic elements of teaching, including tips and techniques. Practical tone: the book serves as a down-to-earth practitioners' guide. Short, focused chapters. Coherent and convenient organization. Mix of general educational perspectives and computing-specific elements. Connections between teaching in general and teaching computing. Both historical and contemporary perspectives. This book presents practical approaches, tips, and techniques that provide a strong starting place for new computing faculty and perspectives for reflection by seasoned faculty wishing to freshen their own teaching.

The book helps researchers to apply intelligent systems to computational sustainability models to propose efficient methods, techniques, and tools. The book covers such areas as intelligent and adaptive computing for sustainable energy, water, and transportation networks; blockchain for decentralized systems for sustainable applications, systems, and infrastructure; IoT for sustainable critical infrastructure; explainable AI (XAI) and decision-making models for computational sustainability; sustainable development using edge computing, fog computing, and cloud computing; cognitive intelligent systems for e-learning; artificial intelligence and machine learning for large-scale data; green computing and cyber-physical systems; real-time applications in
