Oxidation-reduction (redox) reactions are everywhere. They include cellular respiration, combustion reactions and other spontaneous or forced energy-converting reactions. Every battery, whether hand-held or portable, converts chemical energy that is stored in a battery's cells.

Oxidation-reduction reactions involve electron transfer. The substance which undergoes oxidation loses electrons. Oxidation-reduction reactions transfer electrons from the substance which is oxidized to the substance which is reduced. The substance which is oxidized is the reducing agent (provides electrons), and the substance which is reduced is the oxidizing agent (accepts electrons).
