Field Archaeology in Britain John Coles, 2014-11-13 A practical guide to the various modern methods of discovery excavation and recording of the remains left by prehistoric man in Britain It stresses the vital role played by the amateur rescuing evidence of man's past behaviour in these islands and is illustrated by maps site plans and sections and drawings of equipment and surveying procedures Originally published in 1972 Routledge Library Editions: Historiography

Various, 2021-06-23 The greatest problem in historical scholarship theoretically and practically is the relation between historians and their subject matter The past is gone and historians can only study its remnants On what basis do scholars select certain facts from the mass of data left from the past How do they explain the interrelationship of the facts they select What criteria do they use to evaluate their subject The 35 volumes in this set originally published between 1926 and 1990 discuss and answer these essential questions faced by historians The development of historical understanding during the 18th and 19th centuries was one of the most striking features of Western culture Both historiography and historical thinking advanced as never before The historical movement of the 19th century was perhaps second only to the scientific revolution of the seventeenth century in transforming Western thought One consequence was extensive organisation and professionalization of research which the volumes in this set reflect From Coast to Fen: Archaeology in a Dynamic

Landscape Claire Christie, Joshua T. Hogue, 2025-07-18 Excavations across East Lincolnshire reveal prehistoric Iron Age Roman and post medieval settlements saltmaking and industrial activity shaped by changing landscapes The area between Anderby Creek and Bicker Fen Lincolnshire to the west of the Lincolnshire Wolds represents a dynamic landscape both in terms of its natural and human aspects This volume presents the results of an extensive programme of archaeological excavation undertaken by Headland Archaeology UK Ltd and Allen Archaeology Ltd from 2018 to 2019 where a total of 15 sites were excavated The excavations uncovered a panoply of remains spanning the prehistoric through to modern periods providing important insights into changing patterns of occupation and the way this diverse landscape was utilised As evidenced through the archaeological works the area saw limited activity during the early prehistoric period in part reflecting the prevailing environmental conditions in which most of the area was inundated Among the earliest recorded finds was an enigmatic middle Bronze Age timber structure as well as a copper alloy axe During the Roman period there is evidence for an expansion in activity across the Scheme with formerly inundated areas becoming accessible Activity within the northern half of the Scheme was focused upon salt production Two of these sites were dated to the late Roman period contrary to the prevailing notion that the salt industry in this region had declined by the mid 2nd century AD Within the southern half of the Scheme were several Roman farmsteads some featuring timber buildings Notable among these was an unusual post built moated structure From these sites a range of artefactual and environmental data was collected providing important insights into the nature of agricultural regimes Evidence of medieval and post medieval activity was also uncovered providing important insights into the development of rural settlement against a backdrop of landscape and environmental changes Evidence of late to post medieval clay extraction and brick manufacture was also identified items held Library of Congress Catalog Library of Congress,1970 A cumulative list of works represented by Library of Congress printed cards Interpreting the English Village Mick Aston,Christopher Gerrard,2013-02-07 An original and approachable account of how archaeology can tell the story of the English village Shapwick lies in the middle of Somerset next to the important monastic centre of Glastonbury the abbey owned the manor for 800 years from the 8th to the 16th century and its abbots and officials had a great influence on the lives of the peasants who lived there It is possible that abbot Dunstan one of the great reformers of tenth century monasticism directed the planning of the village The Shapwick Project examined the development and history of an English parish and village over a ten thousand year period This was a truly multi disciplinary project Not only were a battery of archaeological and historical techniques explored such as field walking test pitting archaeological excavation aerial reconnaissance documentary research and cartographic analysis but numerous other techniques such as building analysis dendrochronological dating and soil analysis were undertaken on a large scale The result is a fascinating study about how the community lived and prospered in Shapwick In addition we learn how a group of enthusiastic and dedicated scholars unravelled this story As such there is much here to inspire and enthuse others who might want to embark on a landscape study of a parish or village area Seven of the ten chapters begin with a fictional vignette to bring the story of the village to life Text boxes elucidate re occurring themes and techniques Extensively illustrated in colour including 100 full page images Everyday Lifestyles and Sustainability Fabricio Chicca,Brenda Vale,Robert Vale,2018-04-09 The impact of humanity on the earth overshoots the earth s bio capacity to supply humanity s needs meaning that people are living off earth s capital rather than its income However not all countries are equal and this book explores why apparently similar patterns of daily living can lead to larger and smaller environmental impacts The contributors describe daily life in many different places in the world and then calculate the environmental impact of these ways of living from the perspective of ecological and carbon footprints This leads to comparison and discussion of what living within the limits of the planet might mean Current footprints for countries are derived from national statistics and these hide the variety of impacts made by individual people and the choices they make in their daily lives This book takes a bottom up approach by calculating the footprints of daily living The purpose is to show that small changes in behaviour now could avoid some very challenging problems in the future Offering a global perspective on the question of sustainable living this book will be of great interest to anyone with a concern for the future as well as students and researchers in environmental studies human geography and development studies Ethics in Archaeological Practice Sarah Kielt Costello,Sarah Lepinski,2024-12-31 Ethics in Archaeological Practice explores urgent topics and issues in archaeology as currently practiced in the classroom the field the museum and the public sphere While addressed primarily to archaeologists working in western Asia the eastern Mediterranean and North Africa the volume raises contemporary ethical questions around race gender disability climate change and cultural heritage that are pressing and relevant to archaeology students and professionals worldwide The fifteen contributors offer fundamental case studies and practical guidance for best practices and models of high standards of ethical practice in professional conduct Together they offer new approaches to advocacy and the responsible stewardship of heritage sites collections and the environment These compelling and generative discussions make the case for a 21st century archaeology that is proactive and engaged with discourses addressing equity social justice anti colonialism and climate change

The Creation of Monuments Alistair Oswald, Carolyn Dyer, Martyn Barber, 2014-07-15

Neolithic Causewayed enclosures are amongst the oldest rarest and most enigmatic of the ancient monuments found in Europe First recognised as a distinct type in the 1920s sixty nine certain or probable examples have now been identified in the British Isles As a class they are of outstanding importance for while their precise functions remain unclear they represent the first non funerary monuments and the earliest instance of the enclosure of open space This book presents an overview of the findings of a systematic national programme of research carried out by the RCHME now merged with English Heritage Every certain probable and suggested causewayed enclosure in England has been investigated through integrated aerial and field survey Specialist reconnaissance flying has been undertaken along with the thorough analysis of aerial photographs taken from the 1920s onwards This has greatly increased the number of sites known turning the spotlight onto many that have received little or no archaeological attention in the past The aerial surveys now available offer a new basis for improved understanding Analytical field investigations of the few causewayed enclosures that are well preserved as earthworks have also squeezed fresh information out of even those long familiar to archaeologists Far from merely dotting the i s and crossing the t s of past fieldworkers these detailed surveys have led to the rejection of some long held theories and the proposal of new interpretations This book significantly advances the understanding of causewayed enclosures both as individual monuments and as a class It is a major contribution to the understanding of the British Neolithic and to landscape archaeology more generally
