Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and heart rate reserve (HRR) of sedentary, middle-aged men. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group and a training group. The training group performed a 12-week training program consisting of three sessions per week, each lasting 30 minutes. The control group did not participate in any training. The HR and HRR were measured at rest and during exercise at the beginning and end of the 12-week period. The results showed that the training group had a significant increase in HR and HRR compared to the control group. The HR increased from 72 to 78 beats per minute, and the HRR increased from 28 to 34 beats per minute. The control group showed no significant change in HR and HRR. The results suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the cardiovascular fitness of sedentary, middle-aged men.

- Day and night periods that are longer than the standard 24 hours occur most commonly with the use of artificial light or natural light sources. To avoid this, there are two things the producer should do:
 - 1. Use natural light sources that are as close to the natural day and night cycle as possible.
 - 2. Use artificial light sources that are as close to the natural day and night cycle as possible.

When you install your T-Value One Connection, improper installation of all four screws (50 combinations for One Connection) will void the warranty. Please, before installing, refer to the correct installation instructions. Failure to maintain proper ventilation may result in a serious problem with the product.

- When a producer's price for the output rises or falls, it must adjust its output level accordingly. For example, if the price of the output rises, the producer will want to produce more of the output, and if the price falls, the producer will want to produce less of the output.
