

A GUIDE TO FIRE ALARM BASICS

A fire alarm system is a crucial part of the overall fire protection and life safety strategy of a building. A fire alarm system serves many functions, and the differences between the functions can be a bit confusing, so this visual guide to fire alarm basics was created. The objective of this document is to discuss some of the major components and functions of a fire alarm system.

FIRE ALARM SYSTEMS | DIAGRAM

FACU - Fire Alarm Control Unit

The fire alarm control unit serves as the brain of the fire alarm system by monitoring all the inputs and controlling all the outputs. Some may also refer to this as a fire alarm control panel or fire alarm panel. The different types of conditions that can be seen at the fire alarm control unit are alarm, supervisory, and trouble; these conditions can also result in a signal being sent to the supervising station.

Alarm

An alarm condition means there is an immediate threat to life, property, or mission. An example of this would be a smoke detector sending a signal to the fire alarm control unit that there is a presence of smoke, which would initiate notification to the occupants to evacuate.

Trouble

A trouble condition means there is an issue or fault with the fire alarm system. An example would be a break in an initiating device circuit. This would show up as a trouble signal on the control unit.

Supervisory

A supervisory condition means there is an issue with a system, process, or equipment that is monitored by the fire alarm control unit (see Part 2 on Supervision). An example of this would be a sprinkler system valve being closed; this would show up as a supervisory signal on the control unit.
