

Bernoulli's equation states that, given one continuous ideal flow, the sum of its three terms is a constant at any point in the fluid. If we look closely at Bernoulli's equation, we see that it is actually a restatement of conservation of energy. Notice that if we multiply any of the terms by volume, we get units of energy. In fact, the second term gives the gravitational potential energy per unit volume (mgh/V). The third term gives the kinetic energy from the uniform translational motion of the molecules per unit volume. The first term, pressure, is energy per volume from the random motion of the molecules.

Because energy is conserved in ideal fluid flow, the total energy must remain constant; thus, the sum of the three terms is constant throughout the liquid!!!

$$P_1 + \frac{1}{2} \rho_1 v_1^2 + \rho_1 g h_1 = P_2 + \frac{1}{2} \rho_2 v_2^2 + \rho_2 g h_2$$
