Expression of emotion in music and vocal communication Anjali Bhatara,Petri Laukka,Daniel J. Levitin,2014-08-18 Two of the most important social skills in humans are the ability to determine the moods of those around us and to use this to guide our behavior To accomplish this we make use of numerous cues Among the most important are vocal cues from both speech and non speech sounds Music is also a reliable method for communicating emotion It is often present in social situations and can serve to unify a group s mood for ceremonial purposes funerals weddings or general social interactions Scientists and philosophers have speculated on the origins of music and language and the possible common bases of emotional expression through music speech and other vocalizations They have found increasing evidence of commonalities among them However the domains in which researchers investigate these topics do not always overlap or share a common language so communication between disciplines has been limited The aim of this Research Topic is to bring together research across multiple disciplines related to the production and perception of emotional cues in music speech and non verbal vocalizations This includes natural sounds produced by human and non human primates as well as synthesized sounds Research methodology includes survey behavioral and neuroimaging techniques investigating adults as well as developmental populations including those with atypical development Studies using laboratory tasks as well as studies in more naturalistic settings are included

Taking Chances Karen M. O'Neill, Daniel J. Van Abs, 2016-06-03 Humanity is deeply committed to living along the world s shores but a catastrophic storm like Sandy which took hundreds of lives and caused many billions of dollars in damages shines a bright light at how costly and vulnerable life on a shoreline can be Taking Chances offers a wide ranging exploration of the diverse challenges of Sandy and asks if this massive event will really change how coastal living and development is managed Bringing together leading researchers including biologists urban planners utilities experts and climatologists among others Taking Chances illuminates reactions to the dangers revealed by Sandy Focusing on New Jersey New York and other hard hit areas the contributors explore whether Hurricane Sandy has indeed transformed our perceptions of coastal hazards if we have made radically new plans in response to Sandy and what we think should be done over the long run to improve coastal resilience Surprisingly one essay notes that while a large majority of New Jerseyans identified Sandy with climate change and favored carefully assessing the likelihood of damage from future storms before rebuilding the Shore their political leaders quickly poured millions into reconstruction Indeed much here is disquieting One contributor points out that investors scared off from further investments on the shore are quickly replaced by new investors sustaining or increasing the overall human exposure to risk Likewise a study of the Gowanus Canal area of Brooklyn shows that even after Sandy swamped the area with toxic flood waters plans to convert abandoned industrial lots around the canal into high density condominiums went on undeterred By contrast utilities emergency officials and others who routinely make long term plans have changed operations in response to the storm and provide examples of adaptation in the face of climate change Will Sandy be a tipping point in coastal policy debates or simply dismissed as a once in a century anomaly This thought provoking collection of essays in Taking Chances makes an important contribution to this debate

Congressional Record United States. Congress, 2000 Rethinking Value-Added Models in Education Audrey Amrein-Beardsley, 2014-04-24 Since passage of the of No Child Left Behind Act in 2001 academic researchers econometricians and statisticians have been exploring various analytical methods of documenting students academic progress over time Known as value added models VAMs these methods are meant to measure the value a teacher or school adds to student learning from one year to the next To date however there is very little evidence to support the trustworthiness of these models What is becoming increasingly evident yet often ignored mainly by policymakers is that VAMs are 1 unreliable 2 invalid 3 nontransparent 4 unfair 5 fraught with measurement errors and 6 being inappropriately used to make consequential decisions regarding such things as teacher pay retention and termination Unfortunately their unintended consequences are not fully recognized at this point either Given such the timeliness of this well researched and thoughtful book cannot be overstated This book sheds important light on the debate surrounding VAMs and thereby offers states and practitioners a highly important resource from which they can move forward in more research based ways
