United States in the postwar world economy led to a rapid expansion of education and labor opportunities. As a result of their newfound access to training and jobs, many ethnic and religious outsiders among them Jews and Italians finally gained full acceptance as members of the mainstream. Alba proposes that this large scale assimilation of white ethnics was a result of non zero sum mobility which he defines as the social ascent of members of disadvantaged groups that can take place without affecting the life chances of those who are already members of the established majority. Alba shows that non zero sum mobility could play out positively in the future as the baby boom generation retires opening up the higher rungs of the labor market. Because of the changing demography of the country, many fewer whites will be coming of age than will be retiring. Hence the opportunity exists for members of other groups to move up. However, Alba cautions this demographic shift will only benefit disadvantaged American minorities if they are provided with access to education and training. In Blurring the Color Line, Alba explores a future in which socially mobile minorities could blur stark boundaries and gain much more control over the social expression of racial differences.

The Visual Turn and the Transformation of the Textbook James A. LaSpina, 2014-04-04. Is the emerging digital multimedia culture of today transforming the textbook or forever displacing it? As new media of transmission enter the classroom, the traditional textbook is now caught up in a dialogue reshaping the textual boundaries of the book and with it the traditional modes of cognition and learning which are bound more to language than to visual form. Most of the important work in the past two decades in the field of curriculum has focused on the culture of the textbook. A rich literature has evolved around textbooks as the traditional object of instructional activity. This volume is an important contribution to this literature which focuses on the actual making of a textbook. This design process serves as a metaphor that suggests new paradigms of learning and instruction in which text content is but one component in a multidimensional information space. The Visual Turn is an exploration along the border of this new learning space.
