

3. Spring Constant Experiment

Introduction

In this experiment you will be introduced to the process of linearizing an equation that you will use to determine the spring constant for a given spring. You will use two different methods to collect your data: measuring extension as a function of the applied load (static method) and measuring the frequency of oscillation of a mass suspended from the spring (dynamic method).

Theory

Part 1: Static Method (k_s)

The ability of an object to regain its original shape after having been deformed by a force is called elasticity. All solid substances have this property. However, after certain point in deformation (called the elastic limit) the object remains permanently deformed. If the deformation is kept within the elastic limit, the spring's extension is proportional to the applied force. This is known as Hooke's law and is expressed as where F is the applied force measured in Newtons ($N = \frac{kgm}{s^2}$), x is the spring's extension length in meters, and k is a proportionality constant called the spring constant and expressed in $\frac{N}{m}$.

$$\vec{F} = k\vec{x} \quad (3.1)$$

In the first part of the experiment you will use Hooke's law to determine the spring constant, k_s , of a spring. The basis of this experiment is illustrated in Figure 1. The force applied on the spring is the gravitational force $F_g = Mg$.
