Chapter 5: Newton's Laws of Motion

Answers to Even-Numbered Conceptual Questions

2. If the tablecloth is pulled rapidly, it can exert a force on the place settings for only a very short time. In this brief time, the objects on the table accelerate, but only slightly. Therefore, the objects may have barely moved by the time the tablecloth is completely removed.
4. As the dog shakes its body, it starts water in its fur moving in one direction. When it then begins to shake its body in the opposite direction, much of the water continues in the same direction because of the law of inertia (Newton's First Law). As a result, water leaves the fur with each reversal in direction.
6. (a) The upper string breaks, because the tension in it is equal to the applied force on the lower string plus the weight of the block. When the tension in the upper string reaches the breaking point, the tension in the lower string is below this value. (b) The lower string breaks in this case, because of the inertia of the block. As you move your hand downward rapidly the lower string stretches and breaks before the block can move a significant distance and stretch the upper string.
8. Each time the astronauts throw or catch the ball they exert a force on it, and it exerts an equal and opposite force on them. This causes the astronauts to move farther apart from one another with increasing speed as the game progresses.
10. The whole brick also experiences twice the force due to gravity. As a result, these two effects (more inertia, more force) exactly cancel, and the free fall acceleration is independent of mass.
12. No. If only a single force acts on the object, it will not stay at rest; instead, it will accelerate in the direction of the force.
14. (a) When the parrot jumps, it pushes down on its perch. In this case, the scale reads a larger value. (b) When the parrot is in the air, the scale reads only the weight of the bird cage. (c) When the parrot lands, the perch exerts an upward force on it to bring it to rest. As a result, the scale again reads a larger value. The average of the scale readings in parts (a), (b), and (c) is just the weight of the parrot plus the weight of the bird cage.
16. Since the car is at rest, we can conclude that it has zero net force acting on it. This is not the same as having no forces at all acting on the car. In fact, gravity exerts a downward force, and the road exerts an equal and opposite net upward force (summed over the four tires).
18. As you hit the rug with the tennis racket, you cause it to accelerate rapidly. The dust on the rug, if it is not attached too firmly, will be left behind as the rug accelerates away from it. In this way, you are able to remove much of the dust from the rug.
20. Yes, in fact it happens all the time. Whenever you throw a ball upward it moves in the opposite direction to the net force acting on it, until it reaches the top of its trajectory.
