

REFERENCES MANUAL - How To -

This manual, developed by World Institute for Advanced Research and Science (VIARS), provides authors with information on how to compose references in-text and in list. Norms are based on APA (American Psychological Association, 2010) 6th edition of Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association, and APA style® (<http://www.apastyle.org/>) referencing guide and other minor sources.

Please note that editors are not responsible for content errors in the references list itself. Authors need to be rigorous in writing and editing. References cited in the main document text should appear obligatory in the references list at the end, and in alphabetic order. If wanting to provide additional resources (that don't appear on text, but provide more information about the subject), authors need to open a heading in the end of the references list, naming it "Additional reading".
