► Chlorophyllin is a water-soluble derivative of chlorophyll. It is used to treat jaundice, a condition in which the liver is unable to process bilirubin, a yellow pigment that builds up in the blood. Chlorophyllin is also used to treat constipation and to relieve the itching and burning associated with hemorrhoids. It is also used to treat the skin condition known as psoriasis. Chlorophyllin is a natural product and is generally considered safe. However, it can cause side effects such as nausea, vomiting, and diarrhea. It can also interact with certain medications, so it is important to consult with a doctor before taking it.

QUESTION My 10-year-old son has been diagnosed with a urinary tract infection. He has been taking antibiotics for 3 days, but he still has a fever and is still uncomfortable. What should I do?

ANSWER Urinary tract infections (UTIs) are common in children, and they can be caused by a variety of bacteria. The most common cause is Escherichia coli, which is a bacterium that is found in the digestive tract of many people. UTIs can also be caused by other bacteria, such as Staphylococcus and Klebsiella.

It is important to continue to give your son his antibiotics for the full course of treatment, even if he starts to feel better. Stopping the antibiotics too early can lead to the infection returning. If your son's fever persists or if he becomes more uncomfortable, you should contact his doctor. Your doctor may want to check his urine again to see if the infection has cleared up.

In the meantime, you can help your son feel more comfortable by encouraging him to drink plenty of fluids. This will help to flush the bacteria out of his system. You can also give him over-the-counter pain relievers, such as acetaminophen, to help with his discomfort. If you are concerned about your son's condition, it is always best to consult with his doctor.

1. Identify the main components of the system. The system consists of a client application, a server application, and a database.

2. Describe the architecture of the system. The system is a client-server architecture. The client application is responsible for user interaction and data entry. The server application is responsible for processing requests and managing the database. The database is responsible for storing and retrieving data.

He reports frequent urination and increased thirst. Physical examination reveals a thin, frail man with dry mucous membranes and a heart rate of 100 beats per minute. Laboratory studies show a hemoglobin A1c of 10.5%, serum glucose of 250 mg/dL, and serum sodium of 128 mEq/L. Which of the following is the most likely cause of his symptoms?

ANSWER
 A. Insulin resistance
 B. Hypothyroidism
 C. Hyperthyroidism
 D. Adrenal insufficiency
