1. The first step is to identify the problem. In this case, the problem is that the system is not working as expected.

2. The next step is to gather information about the problem. This includes checking the logs, asking the user for more details, and looking at the system configuration.

3. Once you have gathered the information, you can start to troubleshoot the problem. This involves testing different hypotheses and making changes to the system.

4. If you are unable to solve the problem, you may need to escalate it to a higher level of support. This could involve contacting the vendor or a specialist.

5. Finally, once the problem has been solved, you should document the solution and share it with the user. This will help prevent the problem from happening again in the future.
